Axe falls on PA potato budget

BY DONNA TOMMELLEO

STATE COLLEGE — Faced with federal budget cuts of at least $75,000 a year, more than 300 Pennsylvania potato growers will vote this spring on doubling their penny per hundredweight assessment to save the 5-year-old Potato Research Program.

The referendum was announced Wednesday, during the 31st Annual Pennsylvania Potato Growers Institute in State College. If passed, the program would generate $60,000 annually as compared with a previous $30,000.

"We are flat broke," remarked research director and plant pathologist David MacKenzie.

MacKenzie heads the Potato Seed Farm at Black Moshannon which is funded by growers' assessments, potato chip companies, agrichemical companies and federal and state grants. The farm was built to produced elite potato seed and varieties that would help state growers compete in a highly competitive national industry.

The plant pathologist explained that national competition contributed to the current financial woes of the Commonwealth's industry.

The Pacific Northwest, (Idaho, Washington, Oregon, etc.) has more "political clout," said MacKenzie, who has lobbied for funds for Pennsylvania, only to walk away empty-handed.

"Washington, D.C. has dried up as a source of funds," he noted. MacKenzie said he also had requested state funds, generated from harness racing, but was turned down.

"Agriculture research has the lowest priority. I was told there would be no fair funds for new ag grants," MacKenzie reported.

As a result, MacKenzie explained that stripping the research farm to the bare operating minimum was necessary.

"We'll make it through planting and we'll make it through June," he said. "The question is, at what level will we operate?

"We perform magic, but we're not up to miracles." However, MacKenzie assured growers that the farm would not be shut down.

Research advisory board supervisor Ray Reiter reported that State Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell has reviewed the growers request for a a two cent assessment and has agreed to conduct a special referendum.

Hallowell recently informed growers by mail of the upcoming referendum and has set a public hearing for Tuesday, March 23, 1:30 p.m. at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture in Harrisburg.

Lancaster County Dairy Days

Is more feed-vet cooperation needed?

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

LANCASTER — Is more cooperation needed between feed company representatives and veterinarians on today's dairy farms?

It would seem so, according to comments from a panel of three vets that were on the Lancaster County Dairy Days program this week.

A concensus of opinion among the vet panel, which included Drs. Christopher Barton, Salunga; David Baver, Quarryville; and Harley Kooker, Gap, was that vets and feedmen at times give different recommendations and there should be more cooperation among the two and the dairy operators they serve.

In other matters covered during the varied two-day program, these additional observations came to light:

—Johne's disease is becoming an increasing problem in dairy herds and a concentrated statewide effort may be needed to eradicate the disease.

—With the apparent continuing trend to larger dairy operations, these big operators still may have something to learn from successful smaller farmers.

—The differing sides in the milk referendum debate are pretty well polarized and there are no new changes in positions.

—Easy credit policies and lower interest rates of the past may be part of the financial problems that agriculture now faces.

The vet panel led off the Tuesday portion of the program, following the Farm Bureau film on animal welfare.

"Feedmen and vets don't seem to talk much together," Dr. Baver said.

Dr. Barton gave the opinion that the conflict between the feed industry and veterinarians may be due to each party working on a different economic basis.

"Veterinarians are working for the dairyman and we may see ways to more economically produce milk that is in conflict with the feedman," Dr. Barton said.

Dr. Kooker echoed the feelings of his colleagues that more cooperation is needed and perhaps

"Ag secretaries agree to lead "Agriculture Day"

LANCASTER — Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block and PA Ag Secretary Penrose Hallowell, both agreed this week to serve, respectively, as national and state honorary chairmen for Agriculture Day 1982, scheduled to take place March 18.

Initiated originally in 1973 as national "Agriculture Day," the program is dedicated to celebrating the "successess of U.S. agriculture in providing the world's most abundant and highest quality food supply," according to the state Department of Agriculture.

Senators Jesse Helms and Walter Huddleston, with the support of 36 senators, introduced a resolution proclaiming the day a national ag day recently. The resolution requests the President to issue a proclamation encouraging Americans to participate in ceremonies and activities honoring one of the nation's most important industries.

In introducing the resolution, Helms said, "The United States Congress can pay a fitting tribute to American farmers and ranchers by adopting this resolution. In view of the tremendous accomplishments and contributions that American farmers make to the national and world economies, it is appropriate to recognize American agriculture in this manner."

On the state level, Hallowell said, "Agriculture is truly Pennsylvania's heartbeat, providing an abundance of food at reasonable prices, a stable source of jobs and a standard of living of which we can all be proud. Agriculture Day is a nationwide effort to tell the public just how important agriculture is in their daily lives."

Lancaster Farming will be recognizing this eminent day, designated this year as "Agriculture: It's Your Heartbeat America," in a future issue.—DK

The Bottom Line

As everybody knows the bottom line represents your profit or loss, and at WALTER M. DUNLAP AND SONS we do all we can to enhance your profit or minimize your loss.

How do we do it?

The answer is in the way all livestock consignments are expertly sorted and handled whether those consignments are fat cattle, veal calves, feeder pigs or fat hogs.

The result is LESS SHRINK.

First of all, every consignment of feeder pigs, veal calves and fat hogs is weighed upon arrival. So, with LESS SHRINK, and at present prices, this means MORE DOLLARS for you the consignor.

Secondly, all fat cattle are assigned large pens and each consignment is kept separate. With large airy pens and water available the result is LESS SHRINK.

And just one more matter of importance — There is no waiting at the docks to unload.

What does all this add up to?

The bottom line is LESS SHRINK and more dollars to you the consignor.

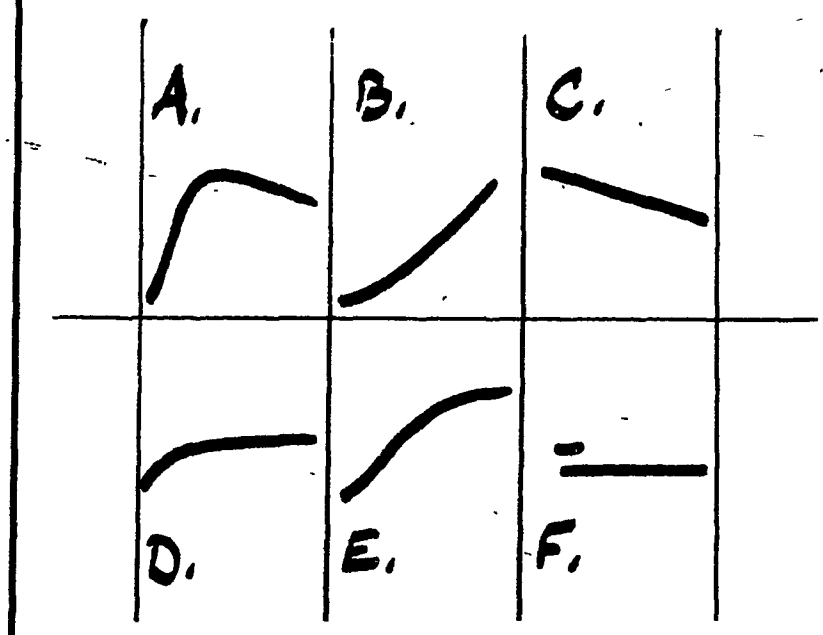
Question:
Which of the following six lines is most important to today's surviving poultryman?



If you answered F. (the "Bottom Line") you are correct. The other lines (identified below) all play a part, of course, in making up the bottom line. But don't catch yourself bragging to your neighbors about peak production or egg size or feed consumption if your bird isn't the best "bottom line" performer. The DEKALB DK layer, we believe rates with the best on "bottom line" potential. We'd be glad to share with you some of the facts that make true this statement.

(Identification of other lines above: A. Hen-day production, B. Hen-housed production, C. Livability, D. Feed consumption, E. % Large eggs)

You can't teach an old meats judge new tricks

The USDA is at it again. They're trying to drive every college meats team alumnus over the edge by trimming down and revamping their meat grading quality standards for carcass beef and slaughter cattle.

Believe me, it was tough enough learning how much marbling had to be in that cherry red loin eye to rank the prestigious title of Prime when the standards allowed fatter cattle. Now they're asking me to forget everything I learned after spending "I'd rather be somewhere else"- weekends with Professor Glenn Kean and four other shivering ag students as we admired and scrutenized rail after rail of cattle, hogs and lambs in damp, freezing meat coolers.

Really, it was an honor and a challenge to be a member of the Penn State meats judging team and I practically memorized the federal governments meat grading handbook. While I didn't have the team's best eye, placing cattle carcasses never seemed to be a difficult task (there were times when the official judge needed a few lessons in placing, though).

Back then there was a world of difference between a Prime ribeye and one that would only grade Choice. My biggest problem came when it was time to decide between a Low Choice and a High Good grade. Were those flecks of fat I was seeing or were my glasses just a bit fuzzy?

Well, if I had trouble choosing between the two grades then, I would probably find it next to impossible now since the grading standards have been lowered, allowing less finished beef to sneak into the Choice grade.

Even though it seems like just yesterday that the grading standards were lowered, the USDA is proposing to lower them again.

According to Deputy Assistant Secretary of Agriculture John Ford, "the proposed changes should allow leaner beef to qualify for Prime and Choice grades but not significantly lower the palatability of either grade. Beef in the Good grade would be leaner with lowered palatability."

Here's what USDA proposes:

- That the minimum marbling requirements for the Prime, Choice, and Good grades in A maturity (cattle up to approximately 30 months of age) would be reduced to minimum, moderate, typical slight, and minimum traces, respectively;
- That all young beef not meeting minimum requirements for the Good grade would be graded Utility;
- That the Standard grade would be eliminated;
- That the rate of increase in marbling requirements in B maturity (cattle approximately 30 to 42 months of age) would be doubled; that the marbling to maturity relationship be increased from 1:1 to 2:1;
- That quality grade requirements for bullock beef also would be changed so they would still be the same as those for steer, heifer, and cow beef in A maturity. Bullock beef would still be identified for class;
- That related standards for grades of slaughter cattle would be changed to reflect changes made for grades of carcass beef; and
- That no changes would be made in yield grade standards.

Okay, so we can sigh a breath of relief because they're not requiring any less external finish for a Yield Grade 1 rating. They're simply not doing anything with the grading standard which measures the area of the rib eye and the fat covering the beef animal is carrying.

And it's good news for cattle producers who are trying to earn a living satisfying a dieting nation to learn that their grass-fed beef might merit the Choice roller as it swings past the federal inspector's gaze when before it would have passed by as a mere Good.

Packers have been telling us for a few years now they don't want overfinished cattle — so cut out feeding for Primes. As a matter of fact, some packers have discounted the price a producer receives if the cattle come in with too much fat since it just gets trimmed off anyway.

Yet, cattle feeders want the better price that Prime and Choice grade cattle bring. So now they can have the higher quality rating without the extra cost of feeding for more finish.

It's also good to know young, efficient bullocks won't be penalized by the federal grading system any longer. More cattle producers are feeding bulls these days because of their faster rate of gain and leaner carcass. And as long as they're slaughtered at a young age, there's no reason to discriminate against the meat, likewise with heifers.

The grading changes will be a benefit to today's beef producers, and they will give the consumers what they are clamoring for — lean beef.

Of course, I prefer the old ways of grading beef. Nothing looks better to me than a steak loaded with marbling just before it hits the barbeque grill. And nothing tastes better than a thick, juicy bite of Prime beef.

So, even though this 'old-time' meats judge will stick to her Coach Kean-standards, the new beef grades will be a bonus for beef producers and a blessing for packers.

TO BROADCAST LEGUMES

Alfalfa and red clover growers who are planning to broadcast the seeds into a stand of winter wheat or barley should be preparing their seed now. Research and experience have both proven that early March seeding will give the best results. It's the time of year when the ground freezes and thaws frequently, creating a "honeycomb" condition to the top soil. This is an excellent way to give the seeds a light covering of top soil. If the broadcast seeding is made in March, this condition may not prevail.

The seeds should be of top quality and be innoculated with legume bacteria before seeding.

TO CREEP FEED LAMBS

The Easter season is approaching when the price of spring lambs is usually the highest of the season. Sheep growers, who have early lambs, can add extra pounds by feeding the lambs some extra grain. A mixture of cracked corn and oats is suggested in a place where only the lambs have access.

Since the lambs are still nursing the ewes, no extra protein should be needed. Another thing that may add extra weight on the lambs is to feed extra grain to the nursing ewes; this will increase milk flow and result in heavier lambs.

TO MEND PASTURE FENCES

Pastures can provide cattle a lot of good, nutritious forage and it's a place for them to get fresh air, exercise, and sunlight. Before too long, we will be turning our cattle out to pasture, but let's not turn them out too soon, cautions Glenn Shirk, our dairy agent. He advised farmers to let the sod develop and the ground firm up. Spend time now to get the fences in order and to pick up trash and debris before the grass gets too tall and before you get tied down with spring field work.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

COMMANDING THE SPIRITS

March 7, 1982

Background Scripture:
Mark 1:21-45.
Devotional Reading:
1 Corinthians 1:18-25.

When I was a seminary student in the mid-1950's, the miracles of Jesus were a problem for many of us. The reason: All of us were well-grounded in the basic principles of science and those principles seemed utterly unaccommodating to believe in miracles, at least not as the Bible presented them to us. Some of us found the solution in rationalizing the miracles: Jesus didn't really multiply the loaves and fishes, he simply shamed the crowd into sharing what they had with each other. Sharing is no small miracle, we reasoned.

Others of us decided that we could resolve the conflict by maintaining that Jesus lived in another "dispensation," a time of supernatural events, while we live in another age, the age of reason and science. Some, following the lead of theologian Bultmann, decided that the miracle stories were simply "myths," and could not be accepted on a literal basis. And still others avoided the conflict altogether by never thinking about it.

Beyond What We Know

Today, the miracles of Jesus need no longer be a stumbling block. New scientific perspectives have helped us to see that as St. Augustine explained it, "a miracle is not contrary to science, but only to what we know of science." Some of the miracles performed by Jesus are being studied by serious scientists and many act as that at one time might have been labeled "impossible" are now regarded as simply "beyond our present knowledge."

Actually, wonderful as the miracles of Jesus are, they are not really as difficult as perhaps as some of Jesus' other feats—acts not regarded as "miraculous". For example, Mark tells us of Jesus' remarkable power to command "unclean spirits."

"What do you do with us, Jesus of Nazareth?" they cried. "Have you come to destroy us? I know who you are, the Holy One of God." And the crowds grasped the significance of this recognition and exclaimed: "With authority he commands even the unclean spirits, and they obey him."

The Spirits Came Out

The obedience of the "unclean spirits" to Jesus' command was certainly impressive. Mark gives us the impression that these spirits obeyed, not willingly, but because they could not withstand the power of Christ. He commanded and they had to obey. They could not say no.

More difficult, however, was Jesus' ministry to people. Instead of commanding, instead of compelling people to follow him, Jesus used the much more difficult means of persuasion. The "unclean spirits" he commanded and they had to obey. But Jesus appealed to the crowds—"Follow me and I will make you become fishers of men"—and no one had to obey him. Commanding the spirits was an impressive feat, but calling disciples is always a much more difficult accomplishment. Yet, Jesus possessed that power—"they were astonished...for he taught them as one who had authority, and not as the scribes."

AND OTHER OPINIONS

No more whipping boys

The problem agriculture is facing today actually began when President Ford decided to put an embargo on grain shipments to the Soviet Union in 1975. The reason he gave was that we had high food prices in the U.S.

Later, President Carter decided to use the shipment of food and grains to the Soviet Union as a weapon against their invasion of Afghanistan. Reagan is now using the shipment of these items to Poland as a weapon. So it's small wonder that other countries have decided that if U.S. can use the shipments of those commodities as a club over the head of someone, why can't they do the same thing.

For example, Mainland China has told us if we continue to sell military planes to Taiwan, they will not honor the five year contract they have with us for the purchase of various grains. India has also decided they could use it as a weapon against us by threatening to cut off the purchase of various grains from the United States if we continue to sell weapons to Pakistan.

Can we criticize them when we are doing the same thing? Also, can we fault the Russians when they indicate they would rather not have us as their main scource of supply?

Another tragic example is Japan. It is the largest single importer of U.S. agricultural products. The volume of purchases from the U.S. exceeds 7 billion dollars, about 15 percent of the total U.S. agricultural exports. Two-thirds of the dollar volume is grain—primarily corn, soybeans and wheat.

At Chicago in July of last year, a panel discussion was held between the U.S. and Japanese concerning the future of U.S./Japan agricultural trade. Secretary of Agriculture Block as well as Ambassador Yoshio Okawara of Japan were in attendance.

The most interesting point made by the panel members—from Japan—and in particular Eishi Ueno, Agricultural Attache, was the point about U.S. grain embargo against Russia. The Japanese viewed this quite negatively and openly stated that as a result of this action they, the Japanese, would work to become less dependent on U.S. agricultural commodities.

The point was made emphatically and repeatedly that the percent of Japanese purchase of grain from the U.S. will decline. They did not consider us a reliable source of supply because we use grain shipments as a weapon in cold war diplomacy.

Somehow or another the United States Department of State and the Department of Agriculture must get their act together. Surely, they realize what a tragic blow to the farmers of this country their actions and in some inactions are causing. And the farmer's plight in this mess is only the tip of the iceberg. Obviously, nothing happens until the farmer grows or raises something, be it wheat, corn, soybeans, rice, cattle or hogs.

I don't think most people realize that agriculture is this country's

AT LAST... A PROTECTIVE COATING THAT'S INDESTRUCTIBLE!

Why be tied to a paint can every two or three years, when you can coat a surface once and forget it for years?

We are pleased to announce that we are the Authorized Dealer for POXY COAT products in this area. This indestructible coating gives lasting waterproof protection and solves maintenance problems beautifully.

Unlike ordinary paints or other epoxy coatings, POXY COAT needs no baking, mixing or measuring of the two-part components. Now you can enhance and protect floors, walls, equipment and any wood, metal or masonry surface.

Space-age, new POXY COAT covers surfaces with a gloss in six glowing colors plus black, white and clear. The gloss stays hard, free of scuffs and scratches even in high traffic areas. The acid-resistant properties of POXY COAT can withstand just about anything in today's corrosive atmosphere. All exterior and interior surfaces can be beautified and protected for a minimum of ten years when used in accordance with instructions. That is... GUARANTEED IN WRITING!

POXY COAT is manufactured to rigidly controlled specifications, designed to produce a long life and trouble-free finish for roofs in industry, farm and home structures. This unique coating forms a film of high water-resistance, abrasion-resistance, exceptional durability and gives an insulation factor of between 15%-20% on surfaces. POXY COAT's finish enables it to withstand climatic variations, continued batterings of strong winds and the rigors of sun and rain.

WHAT DOES IT COST? It's cheaper than paint. One coat is all that's needed, yet it lasts three times longer and covers up to three times more surface than paint.

It's hard to believe, but we are so convinced of the excellent results you will obtain with POXY COAT that for those who like to "try before they buy," we have arranged to supply you with a FREE SAMPLE.

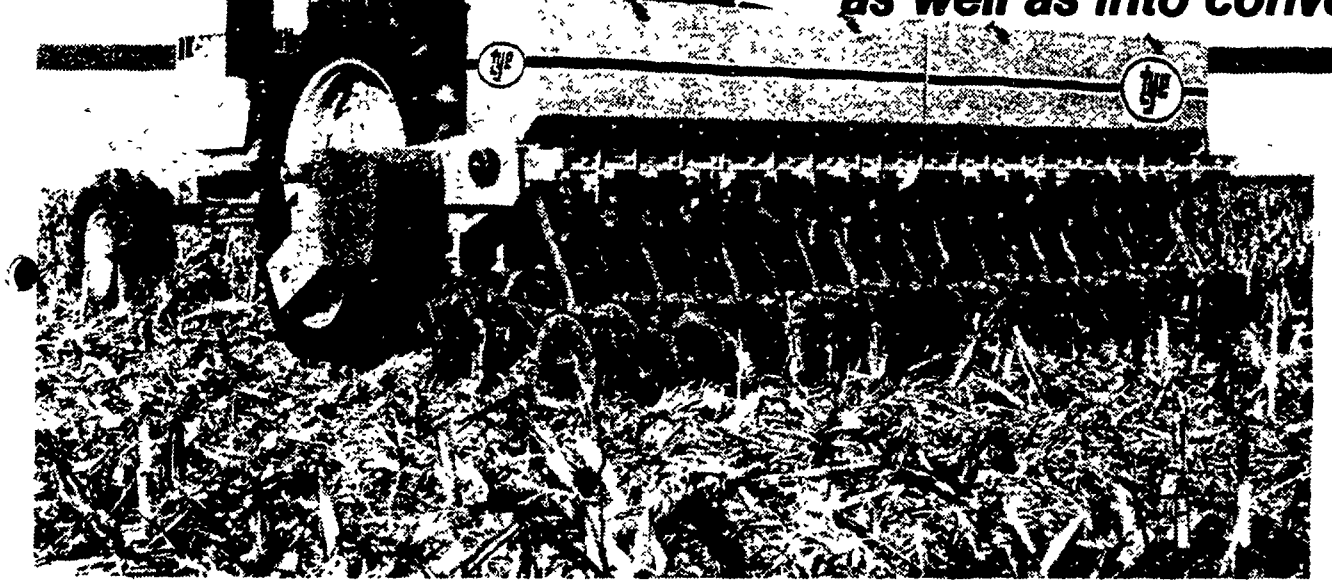
THE TYE STUBBLE DRILL™ IS ALL YOU NEED to plant into corn, wheat, or soybean stubble, as well as into conventionally tilled seedbeds.



The Tye Stubble Drill was designed from the ground up for total control no-till drilling of a wide variety of seeds. It's not just a grain drill with add-on coulters.

Fluted coulters cut through stubble preparing a narrow seedbed for planting. Individually mounted 1" wide fluted spring loaded coulters cut through stubble and straw preparing a path in front of each double-disc opener. The double-disc openers follow right behind, opening the seedbed and placing the seed in front of the disc bearing—assuring uniform seed placement without scatter.

Following the double-disc openers are individually attached press/depth control wheels in either single 2" x 13" or V•1" x 10", that insure good seed soil contact, correct planting depth, and seed cover. Adjustable, internally fluted seed dispensers gently and accurately meter a variety of seed including soybeans, grain sorghum, wheat and more. Available in end wheel pull type and three-point hitch models.

Tye's end wheel design makes the unit easy for the tractor to lift, especially after additional weight has been added for coulter penetration. Models are available in either 8" or 10" row spacing.

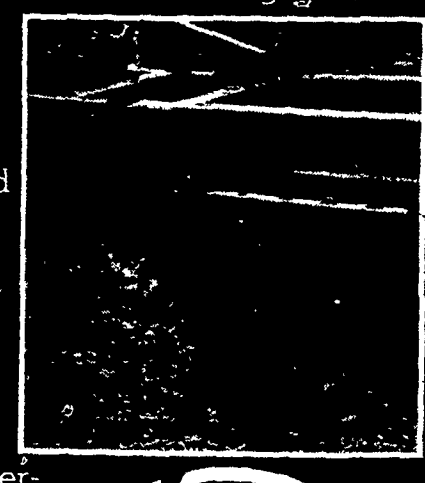
THE VICON PROMISE: A PERFECT SEEDBED.

A seedbed black as midnight. Flat as a tabletop, smooth and loose. The kind of seedbed that requires five, six, even seven passes with your present equipment.

Vicon can deliver that seedbed faster and more economically with its new extra wide Power Harrow. The Vicon Power Harrow stirs the soil with a side-to-side, boiling action that leaves the ground level and smooth. Moisture stays down deep.

Used after a moldboard plow and secondary tillage, the Vicon Power Harrow will do more in less time than any finishing tool on the market or on your farm. That's why we deliver the perfect seedbed efficiently and at less cost.



If you're having trouble incorporating your chemicals, the Vicon Power Harrow will do a perfect job of that too. One pass with a Vicon Power Harrow gives better horizontal and vertical incorporation than two passes with a disc. Independent crumbler adjustment accurately controls working depth.

But make us prove it. Challenge your Vicon dealer to make good with a demonstration of the new Vicon Power Harrow in a choice of 20- and 25-ft. extra wide models as well as in 10- and 15-ft. widths. He has grounds for proof.

Tweedy addresses ASAE 75th meeting

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Critical resource shortages, declining research and education funding, and public policies relating to agriculture are key issues facing agricultural engineers in the next decades, according to Robert H. Tweedy, president of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers, which celebrates its 75th Anniversary in 1982.

Tweedy was featured speaker March 4, before the Washington, D.C. Maryland Section, ASAE. His speech was entitled "Agricultural Engineering and Future Issues."

Competing interests for resources by various special interests will demand that new public policies be established. This will impose new obligations on our profession," he said.

Land, water and energy use are three areas where clearly defined public policies will be needed in order to assure adequate amounts of each of these resources for agriculture, Tweedy said.

By being active during the formation of legislation affecting agriculture, engineers can be more efficient, Tweedy said. He emphasized that this participation must be balanced by a "politically neutral objectivity."

Public-funded agricultural research has served well to provide abundant, low-cost food in the U.S., and the ample food supplies exported by this country, Tweedy said, yet public and private research funding for agriculture is declining.

"Agriculture is possibly the only federal research investment with a positive rate of return to the public. The 'rate of return' are so attractive that we should be increasing it, not reducing it," he said.

In addition, declining public funding for education threatens both the quantity and quality of engineering graduates, Tweedy contends.

A combination of high industry engineering salaries and low graduate assistantships will reduce the number of PhDs in agricultural engineering, placing even greater strain on the teaching ranks.

Robert H. Tweedy

"Further, the quality of engineering graduates is threatened in some schools because they lack modern engineering equipment and laboratories," he said.

Tweedy described public concern about mechanized agriculture as an issue that, left unresolved, could further reduce agricultural productivity and result in food costs rising.

"We must basically be pro-mechanization when it results in improved productivity and reduced food costs," he said. "I feel mechanization is usually appropriate when it reduces or eliminates the drugery of farm labor."

Historically, productivity in agriculture has been high and has maintained annual increases above those in other industries, Tweedy said.

ASAE, a technical and professional society, has begun to address many of the complex issues facing agriculture. Tweedy said, but the major successes can only be achieved with the grass-roots support of all interests working within the agricultural sector.

ASAE is a non-profit, technical, scientific and educational society committed to improving agriculture through the application of engineering principles. Headquartered in St. Joseph, Michigan, the Society's membership includes 9,000 full members and 2,300 students in 50 states and 90 foreign countries.

Seedling sale improves environment

HARRISBURG — In observance of Arbor Day the Dauphin County Conservation District will conduct it's annual seedling sale on April 24, 1982. During the past seven years, more than 144,000 trees have been planted by landowners for environmental improvement through the Conservation District's seedling sale.

Hardwood species available for sale this year are: White Flowering Dagwood, European White Birch, Silver Maple, Black Locust and Pin Oak.

Evergreens available are: Douglas Fir, Austrian Pine, Blue Spruce, Scotch Pine and Concolor Fir. The size of these three and four year old bareroot seedlings are 18-24" for the hardwoods and 8-16" for the evergreens.

Trees have many benefits, not the least of which is energy conservation. During the summer months shade trees act as "nature's air conditioner." Evaporation from a single large tree can equal the cooling effect of 10 room sized air conditioners running 20 hours a day. A tree shading an air conditioner will enable the machine to cool the house rather than the air conditioner itself.

In the country, trees have additional benefits. When planted together as windbreaks, they break the force of soil-eroding winds in the summer and help to distribute snow evenly on a field in the winder, providing needed moisture for the next year's crop. Tree leaves break the force of pelting raindrops so soil can absorb as much water as possible. The use of firewood as an alternative fuel is yet another benefit of trees. Black locust produces 29.5 BTU's a cord.

Other benefits of trees are, privacy, property beautification, reduction of noise levels, wildlife, habitat and, of course timber production.

Seedlings must be purchased by placing a prepaid order. Unlike past years there will be no cash sales on the delivery date. Individuals interested can call the 24 hour "Evergreen Line" at 652-7073 to request an order form with prices and seedling information. The deadline to order seedlings is April 2, 1982.

Orders will be available for pick-up on Saturday April 24, 1982 If you live south of Peters Mountain your pick-up location will be the Central Dauphin East Sr. High School, 626 Rutherford Rd., Harrisburg from 9 A.M. to 2 P.M. If you live north of Peters Mountain your pick-up location will be the Upper Dauphin Area High School in Elizabethville from 9 A.M. to 12 Noon.

Farm exports turn 1 barrel of oil into 10. This is the way it works — it took about 103 million barrels of oil to produce and ship $41 billion of farm exports in 1980. However, the U.S. imported almost 2 billion barrels of oil at a cost of $80 billion. Those farm exports paid for more than half of the oil imports. In short, the 103 million barrels of oil that were used to produce and ship our farm products overseas bought 986 million barrels of oil in return — almost a 1 to 10 cost-benefit ratio.

Dairy co-op reps present marketing policies

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Staff Correspondent

BERMUDIAN SPRINGS — Why should I get involved in milk marketing? It's so complicated and prices have been good for the last two or three years. Can't we leave the pricing alone? These and other questions were answered at a recent meeting of Adams County dairymen and representatives in the field of milk marketing held at Bermudian Springs High School.

Highlighting the evening was a panel discussion involving representatives from three different milk cooperatives who discussed the impact of the current supply and demand situation, the structure and policies of their individual co-ops, and the upcoming milk referendum.

Prior to the panel, area marketing agent Larry Yager outlined the forthcoming referendum of Pa.'s milk promotion program. He detailed the advantages of milk promotion and urges support for the referendum.

Also, William Johnstone, Extension Agricultural Economist, presented an update on component pricing.

Johnstone stated that, "Producers realize that in general their income will not be greatly enhanced by component pricing. It just means that what is there will be divided differently among different kinds of producers."

He gave examples of what different regional markets are attempting in the area of component pricing. He stated that Milk Marketing Incorporated, which is based in the Pittsburg - Cleveland area, has a tentative program for payment for protein and butterfat that would also involve running at least four somatic cell counts on each producer during the implementation phase.

Payment according to somatic cell count would also be part of their payment program. Johnstone explained that dairy science has long known that high somatic cell counts can change the balance of the protein in milk. Instead of having casein as the source of protein, the high somatic cell count changes it so that more of the protein and solids not fat are in a soluble form and go out with the whey. So, the higher, a somatic cell count, the less product derived because a higher proportion of the protein is in a soluble form. Whether this progam goes through depends heavily on the Pittsburgh markets according to Johnstone.

A panel of milk cooperative representatives discussed changes in their respective co-ops structure, their antibiotic policies, hauling costs, and the problem of surplus milk. Moderated by Larry Yager, panel members included Jay Waybright from Dairymen Inc., Kathy Gill representing Interstate Milk Producers, and Max Sumser speaking for Lehigh Valley.

All three co-ops have undergone structural and marketing changes in recent years. Gill highlighted Inter-State's purchase of one-half of the Holly plant from Dairymen Inc. According to Gill, Inter-State feels this provides a better means for farmers to manage their market and aids in preventive measures to handle the surplus problem. She also informed the group that Inter-State now has a Capital Retention Fund where farmers can invest in the cooperative. She also stated that the co-op has joined Atlantic Processors Inc. in an effort to contract for a standard market.

Waybright summerized his co-op's greatest change as having changed from Maryland Co-op to Dairymen Inc. He states that 1,100 Maryland producers have now become part of Dairymen's 8,000 members. He said the change has allowed for increased marketing and absorption areas. Dairymen Inc. now has a 70 percent Class I utilization.

Speaking for Lehigh Valley, Sumser outlined that what was once Lehigh Farmer is now split into Lehigh Valley Co-op, which is just involved in bargaining, and Atlantic Processors Inc., who has the assets and liabilities.

Antibiotics in milk can be costly to both the producers and the processors. Each representative detailed his co-op's policy.

Gill stated that Inter-State will pay the farmer for one-half of the milk dumped at the farm the first time a fieldman is called and the tests are positive. If the milk gets into a tanker, the farmer is liable for the entire contents of the tanker. If the milk gets into a silo, the farmer is still liable for the

Wenger to speak Thursday

TERRE HILL — The Eastern Lancaster County Adult Farmer Program will sponsor an educational meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday to look at legislative problems facing farmers in the area.

State Rep. Noah Wenger will be the speaker for the evening. Representative Wenger, a farmer himself, will discuss those topics having direct effect on Lancaster County agriculture.

Representative Wenger will be giving-up his seat in the House of Representatives this year and is running for a seat in the State Senate.

All interested persons are invited to hear Representative Wenger speak at the Eastern Lancaster County Alternative School. The school is located on Route 625, two miles north of Route 23.

Dairy reps present policies tanker load and Inter-State picks up the rest of the costs.

Dairymen Inc. has a different policy. Waybright outlined that if a fieldman finds antibiotics in the milk one time in a two year period, the farmer will get $12 per hundred weight for the dumped load. If he finds them twice in 12 months the farmer will receive $6 per hundred. If found a third time, the farmer receives nothing.

Sumser emphasized that Lehigh Valley is very concerned about its milk quality. Both fieldmen and drivers have test kits. If a farmer is found to have antibiotics in his milk, the following policies are implemented: for the first time within one year, the farmer is put off pickup for two days, if found a second time he is put off for four days, and if found a third time he is put off for six days and probably permanently. He stated that Lehigh presently does not levy fines for antibiotics in milk.

Transportation costs are of major concern to the co-ops with the rising cost of energy. Gill stated that Inter-State is actively involved in trying to have the legislature change existing restrictions on axle lengths for trucks. They are also exploring the possibility of mixing loads of milk with different co-ops.

Waybright stated that Dairymen works on the domino effect wherein milk is hauled in to replace that which is taken out thus resulting in shorter hauling distances.

Sumser emphasized that Lehigh now has independent haulers. Their hauling charges are based on a sliding scale between the haulers and the farmers. He stated that 100 percent of the milk goes to their own plants so producers do not have to pay to have surplus milk hauled away. He also stated that in some areas Lehigh has no stop charges at all.

The question of surplus milk in the face of the upcoming spring flush provided for several comments and questions for the panel members. Gill reminded the group that the surplus problem is a national problem. She and Waybright expressed discouragement toward herd expansion while Sumser stated that Lehigh Valley needs more milk. He said that Lehigh will need at least 200 more producers by July 1. 1982 and possibility that many more by the end of the year.

Gill pointed out that Inter-State has the contracts necessary to guarantee a market for its 3,200 members. Still, surplus will have to be marketed at a loss and this is passed on to producers.

Waybright agreed that Dairymen also expects a spring surplus problem. He predicted a greater spread between base price and excess price.

Lehigh, who is looking for milk, will take in 100 million more pounds of milk from its members in 1982 than it did last year according to Sumser. He outlined Lehigh's payment program which includes a 10 cent month quality bonus, a two cent premium on base and excess, plus a 30 cent fall production bonus. Sumser also came out strongly for brand-naming advertising while the others spoke out for generic advertising.

Lancaster Dairy Days

some feedmen should be put on a Dairy Day program in the future.

The three veterinarians were also in agreement that Johne's disease is getting to a point that statewide eradication efforts may be needed. They urged groups like the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association and the Pennsylvania Holstein Association to get behind such a program.

"Little is being done about Johne's," Dr. Kooker said.

"There is no treatment and no good vaccine, although one is now being tested in the Midwest."

The panel explained that while the disease shows up in more mature animals, about 4 to 5 years of age, it may be carried since calfhood. It usually crops up in a cow after a period of stress, such as freshening.

Among other topics touched upon by the veterinary panel were the suggestion that purchased animals be retested before entering a herd even though papers show they already have been tested, a recommendation that a pre-conditioning vaccination program be required on a statewide basis prior to shipment, and a preference for feeding whole milk to calves that are to become replacement heifers, particularly during cold weather when the caloric value of milk replacers may not be enough to sustain a calf.

A highlight of the first day's program on Monday was a panel of four dairy farmers, who represented both the large and small of area operations. While of different sizes, each have operations showing returns over feed costs of $1700 to $2300 per animal.

Representing the smaller dairyman were Benuel Z. Lapp, an Amish farmer from the New Holland area, and Ronald Lehman, Lancaster. The larger operators were John Harnish, Lancaster; and Fred Seipt, of Lansdale.

Of most interest to the audience, at least as far as the number of questions directed at panelists, was Lapp's operation of 45 cows. He lead the Lancaster County DHIA last year and has a herd average of about 23,000 lbs. on a 3X daily milking schedule.

"It's a 60-acre family farm," Lapp explained.

"We process our own milk and retail everything, making better than $14 a hundredweight. I won't say how much because it might invite more competition."

The herd average has climbed from 15,000 lbs. just five years ago. He credits stress on nutrition, rigid culling, better care of dry cows and heifers and most important no major problems and the blessing of the Lord.

Dairy farmer panel which discussed programs for increasing returns over feed costs at Lancaster County Dairy Days include, from the left, Ronald Lehman and John M. Harnish, of Lancaster County; and Fred Seipt, of Montgomery County.

"I'm not a fan of fermented feed," Lapp said,

"Because we retail the milk ourselves, we find that mixed hay gives a better flavor that the customers want. We never feed anything fermented before milking. I'm fussy about the hay, too. I'll crawl on top of a load and open two or three bales before I buy."

Lehman, who has a 19,700-lb. average with just 28 cows, is also a devoted hay man.

"Nothing is more important than good hay," Lehman said.

Both Harnish and Seipt feed more fermented feeds due to the larger herds and the labor involved. Their herd avearages are right around 18,000 lbs.

Lapp puts a lot of importance on his heifer program and poor producers don't get a second chance. They're culled pretty quickly and don't go for beef but go into other milking herds.

For example, one first-calf heifer is a 24,000-lb. producer and

Outstanding young farmer couple relates:

Award stems from dedication, goals, positive attitude

By SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

ELIZABETHTOWN — Being named the 1981 Outstanding Young Farmer Under 30 is a great honor for Jim and Shirley Hershey, and a well-deserved recognition for the hard years of work they invested in getting started in dairying.

However, the award is just a milestone along the journey, and Jim points out, "It makes me feel I have to strive even more to live up to the award in the future."

Striving and working hard are not new to Jim and Shirley; in fact, it was hard work and determination which has gotten them where they are in the five short years they've been farming

The Hersheys farm 127 acres near Elizabethtown and are milking about 55 Registered Holsteins. They have lived on their present farm for four yeas, having purchased it in 1978 from Shirley's father, Raymond Miller. Prior to that they rented Jim's home farm north of New Holland from his father J. Eby Hershey.

Dairying was something Jim always wanted to do, having grown up on a dairy farm. Shirley's father raised beef and chickens although he had dairy cows when she was small. Shirley laughs and says, "They probably took be out to the barn in the stroller."

They did just that with their to children, Marc 2, and Tara 5, months. Marc is often on his tractor and Tara may be on a small wagon or relaxing in her automatic swing set while the milking is in progress.

Shirley says she always wanted to live on a farm, adding, "I was my father's helper. I always thought if I didn't get married my occupation would be farming, so I would have been a farmer anyway." She concedes that it is nice that she found a farmer to marry.

Both Hersheys are ambitious and it shows in their successful operation. They do all the work themselves with just occasional help from Shirley's father. Shirley notes, "My mother is a faithful baby sitter."

They also have a competent milker who has worked with them for four years and knows their cows well. They can take occasional days off and know the cows are cared for, but Jim and Shirley both laugh about vacations, saying, "We work around fresh cows.'

The Hersheys began with his father's herd of 40 cows, including young stock When they decided to make the move to Shirley's home they converted a chicken house into a dairy barn. It was a lot of work, and a lot of travel between the two farms, but Jim says. "You can always do what you make up your mind to do."

When they made the conversion, Jim said they had two goals — to have a stanchion barn with the two long rows of cows back to back, and to have a pipeline. He also wished to keep his spreader and tractor inside.

Reflecting on what they did, Jim says, "We probably would have done some things differently, but we accomplished what we were looking for."

The Jim Hershey family relaxes in their living room between chores. Jim holds son Marc, 2, and Shirley holds daughter, Tara, 5 months old.

In January the Hersheys began raising calves in hutches. Here Jim looks over his crop of healthy calves while son Marc, 2, helps.

Jim is proud of his steady improving DHIA records, saying his last one was 16,400 pounds of milk, 600 fat and 3.6 test. He attributes a steady gain in production to his conversion last May to a total mixed ration system. The system also makes feeding easier.

In addition to the official test, the Hersheys are on the somatic cell count program, something which has been benefical. Jim says, "It tells you a lot about cows that you do not know have problems but which could be hurting production."

Shirley does most of the milking, while Jim does the feeding. They milk the 55-head herd with six units. Shirley says, "It keeps you hustling. They are not on the cows too long. I like it because I don't have to stand around and wait on them."

She said she once knew a woman who used six units and one day when Jim was in the silo when it was time to begin milking she just went ahead. Since then she's been on her own.

Jim points out, "Sometimes we change jobs, and I try to keep close tabs on the cows even though I'm not there."

Jim keeps most of the farm records, saying, "Basically I don't have a lot of free time to sit and study records, but I study them enough to know what needs attention."

The Hersheys raise their own replacements, now having about 43 heifers. They raise their bull calves for beef, although Jim says, "I don't know how much longer we will do that because we are running out of room. But I'm not complaining because we are building up our herd."

Jim adds, "We use AI on all our dairy cows. I do not use the bull on some heifers because they are in another barn and with just two of us we can't catch them in heat. I try to keep one bull for breeding purposes who will turn out nice calves."

He has been doing his own insemination for about a year and is pleased with the results, having improved his conception rate. When he selects bulls he says, "The bull has to be 1000 in milk, or better yet, plus 1500.

In classification this year, the herd which goes by the Pleasant Pasture prefix, had five-year-olds classifying 83. Jim added, "We have a couple of two-year-olds who are milking 19,000 pounds."

An innovation for Jim and Shirley since January is raising calves in hutches. Shirley explained, "We tried it once before and didn't think we liked it. Now we do. I think we are more dedicated to it."

About 35 acres of alfalfa is put in as haylage, and they raise about 30 acres of wheat. The wheat is double-cropped with corn, bringing corn acreage to 60 acres. Half of that is used as high moisture ground ear corn, and that was supplemented last year with an additional 100 tons of corn.

Future goals include increasing the herd to 60 milking cows, which would fill the stanchions most of the time. However, they both feel a herd of 70 cows would be the upper limit.

Jim acknowledges that they

(Turn to Page A28)

Shirley takes care of most of the milking chores, including preparing the milkers and other work in the milkhouse. Here she gets ready for another milking.

The farm buildings are in the background as Jim Hershey holds two-year-old Marc in front of the house. The Hershey moved here four years ago and now have a herd of 55 milking cows.

Cattle perish in fire

EAST BERLIN — A rapidly-spreading fire destroyed a metal pole-type heifer barn late Tuesday afternoon at Welsh's Ponderosa dairy farms, owned by the James and Emily Welsh family, East Berlin.

Ten purebred heifer calves perished in the blaze, and several larger heifers were burned when they tried to seek shelter in the barn as rescuers tried to chase them to safety. Most of the more than 40 animals freed from the barn were bred heifers, with a few steers, a bull and a dry cow.

A pickup truck was also destroyed by the fire.

Welsh's credit a neighbor, Cary Lease, with first spotting smoke pouring from the barn, and alerting them and area firemen.

The fire is suspected of being of electrical origin. There were electric fencing units and two heat lamps in use in the metal building. A spokesman for the family speculated that the flames spread rapidly through fresh bedding used in the heifer pens.

Several of the baby calves, ranging from one to three months in age, were from valuable show stock families. Both a Brown Swiss and a Jersey calf were by winning 4-H and open class show winners owned by sons Thomas and Michael. Lost were two Brown Swiss, one Jersey, three Ayrshire, and four Holsteins, all purebreds.

No estimate on the total damage was available.

The Welsh family has expressed deep appreciation to friends and neighbors who assisted in catching the animals freed from the burning structure.-JB

Egg numbers increase

HARRISBURG — January 1982 egg production in Pennsylvania totaled 383 million, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service. The January production was two percent above the 375 million eggs produced in January 1981. The January average of 16.9 million layers was one percent above a year ago. Egg production per 100 layers was 2,269 compared with 2,230 in January 1981.

The nation's laying flocks produced 5.96 billion eggs during January, one percent less than a year earlier. The number of layers on February 1, 1982 totaled 290 million, compared with 291 a year earlier. Egg production per 100 layers during January was 2,048 compared with 2,052 a year ago.

Extension Council holds legislative banquet

CAMP HILL — The Pennsylvania Council of Cooperative Extension Associations held it's fifth annual Legislative Banquet last week at the Penn Harris Motor Inn in Camp Hill to express appreciation to state legislators for their support of the Cooperative Extension Service in Pennsylvania.

Penrose Hallowell, Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture, welcomed the legislators. He said that Pennsylvania agriculture is growing and the Extension service serves as a vital link to deliver the lastest research developments.

Samuel H. Smith, dean of the College of Agriculture at Penn State was the featured speaker. Smith told the audience that he sees Pennsylvania as a focal point for an upsurge in Northeast agriculture. "Pennsylvania ranks among the top five states in the nation in production of such diverse commodities as milk, mushrooms, apples, eggs, peaches, sweet corn, greenhouse and nursery products," he said.

"Extension is our lifeline and our delivery system to the producers, processors and literally millions of people throughout the state," Smith said. "In the years ahead we are going to need new information systems and new technology to reach these people."

Smith announced that Penn State has received a $76,000 grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation. The study will concentrate on the feasibility of a farm and home computer system within the Cooperative Extension Service in 12 Northeastern states.

This year's program included a computer presentation by Art Hussey, Penn State Extension state leader for computer services. Hussey said that by 1990 most farms in Pennsylvania will have computers. Currently the Extension service is developing plans to have a computer network in all 67 county Extension offices within the next few years.

Hussey explained ways that county Extension offices in Pennsylvania could benefit from a computer system that will link them directly to state specialists at University Park. Using a theatre size screen, Hussey demonstrated how a computer terminal could help farmers manage their operation more efficiently.

William Ringer, state 4-H public speaking winner presented his winning speech titled Looking at my 4-H Years.

About 80 legislators and 150 PCCEA volunteers attended the banquet. The volunteers also met with the legislators during the afternoon at the state capitol.

Attending annual legislative banquet of the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperative Extension Associations are, from the left, Noah Wenger, Representative, 99th District; John Weidman, Director, Lancaster County Extension Association; Kenneth Brandt, Representative, 98th District; and Robert Kindig, Director, Lancaster County Extension Association.

In a past article about Pennsylvania All-American Holstein nominations, (Lancaster Farming, Feb. 27), the All-American pick for aged cow, Northcroft Ella Elevation, 2E 97, was inadvertently omitted.

Wayne Co. plans 4-H judging practices

HONESDALE — The Wayne County 4-H Livestock Judging Teams will be starting their practice sessions in March at area livestock farms.

These practice sessions are for all young people between the ages of 8 and 19 with an interest in learning how to judge livestock species like hogs, sheep and beef. 4-H'ers will have an opportunity to recognize the desirable and undesirable qualities of livestock species by comparing groups of beef, sheep and hogs with the "ideal" animal of each of these species.

All 4-H livestock judges will be eligible to compete in the Penn State Block and Bridle Club's Spring Livestock Judging Contest. This contest is scheduled for Saturday, April 3, 1982 at the Penn State University Beef and Sheep Center.

Judging team members will be expected to judge eight classes of livestock in this contest. The contest will probably include three classes of beef cattle, three classes of hogs and two classes of sheep.

The first 4-H livestock judging practice will be held on Wednesday, March 17, at 8:00 p.m., at the Ernie Rutledge Farm in Tyler Hill. At the Rutledge farm, the 4-H'ers will have an opportunity to judge and discuss some classes of market steers.

Parents and friends are also invited to attend any or all of these livestock judging sessions.

What's he doing baling at this hour?

Whether it's early in the morning and there's still dew on the windrows, or late in the afternoon . . . he's out baling! He's treating his hay with Beacon Hay Pre-Serv*, and that means he can bale at up to 25% moisture! So, he can bring in his hay early in the day, perhaps before bad weather hits. Or he can bale two or three hours later in the afternoon. Or when the hay is almost field cured, but not quite.

What's more, he'll have better hay. Because of its higher moisture content, there's less leaf shatter. There are more high-protein leaves that will turn more milk production. No wonder we call hay treated with Beacon Hay Pre-Serv SuperHay!

Start using this food-grade blend of preservatives, antioxidants and flavors on your hay yourself. Start making SuperHay, and start making super profits! Call your Beacon Advisor now.

Beacon—headquartered in Cayuga, New York . . . available throughout the northeast.

...ung Farmer award

...use more land for their herd size, but say land is hard to come by.

Management in the farming enterprise will be more important in the future, and Jim says, "There won't be as large a profit."

They are both optimistic about the future but Jim points out, "People have to be made aware that the nutritive value in milk is more than in junk food." Shirley adds, "We ship to Lehigh Valley and they do a lot of advertising."

Having both partners equally involved in the operation is a real plus according to Jim. "I can come in and we can talk about the problems at the barn instead of my having to explain to her."

Shirley notes, "I would be upset if it had be be another way. I would not feel near as fulfilled or happy if I weren't involved."

Both Jim and Shirely share the feeling that raising children on the farm is the best place there is.

Their social life revolves around their neighbors and their church, and Jim says, "We have a unique, young neighborhood, and it gives you a good feeling." At the Marietta Community Chapel, Shirley coordinates the Sunday School and Jim coordinates the music.

Shirley is president of Farm Women Society 32, which she helped organize and charter two years ago, and today Jim will become president of the Elizabethtown Young Farmers, after serving as vice president for a year.

Jim and Shirley, at 25, are probably the youngest couple to receive the honor, and they are the second couple from Elizabethtown Young Farmers in two years to earn this state recognition. Joe and Becky Wivell were last yesar's state winners in the same category.

Reflecting on their decision to go into farming - and into debt - Jim says. "It seemed like a big step then but when you look back it makes you feel even better about it."

Jim and Shirley are committed to their dairy farm and to a way of life which places a high value on their family.

Now is the Time

TO DIVIDE PASTURES

It might also be helpful to section off the pasture in order to make best use of the grass. For example, wet areas and flat areas may be fenced off from other areas. This will enable you to keep cows out of wet areas until the ground firms up, and could prevent the development of foot problems. During the initial spring flush of pasture growth, you could keep cattle out of the flat area; save it for hay, and offer it to the cows later in the summer.

TO APPLY MANURE

This is the season of year that a lot of manure is applied in preparation for corn planting. We need to be concerned with proper application of liquid and solid manure in such a way as to minimize odors and avoid pollution complaints.

Applications should be made from mid-morning to mid-afternoon to allow maxium odor dispersion and manure drying before the calm, night time hours when neigbors are home from work. Fields for dispoal should be downwind, rather than upwind from neighbors.

Whenever possible the manure should be plowed under or disked into the soil as soon as possible after spreading. This practice not only minimizes odors but also preserves nutrients and reduces potential for surface run-off that causes water pollution.

He pursued further graduate study at Cornell in Education and Sociology on a Ford Foundation Scholarship, and at the University of Vermont in Business and Public Administration.

From 1963 to 1965, he served as a logistics officer in the U.S. Army. After two years as a teacher in Cayuga County, New York, Gray served as senior planner for the Cayuga County Planning Board from 1968 to 1971. Subsequently, until 1975, he served first as a

From 1975 to 1979, Gray served in federal legislative staff positions, first as a staff consultant to the U.S. House Agriculture Committee, and then as administrative assistant to Congressman James M. Jeffords of Vermont. From 1979 until coming to the American Farmland Trust in April, 1981, Gray was executive director of the National Agricultural Lands Study, a major federal interagency task force aimed at measuring the extent and identifying the causes of agricultural land conversion nationally, culminating with a final report to the President in 1981.

Entertainment for the banquet will be furnished by Voice, Inc., presenting the Back Packers Suite.

Advance reservations are needed to attend this special dinner meeting and should be made by March 22.

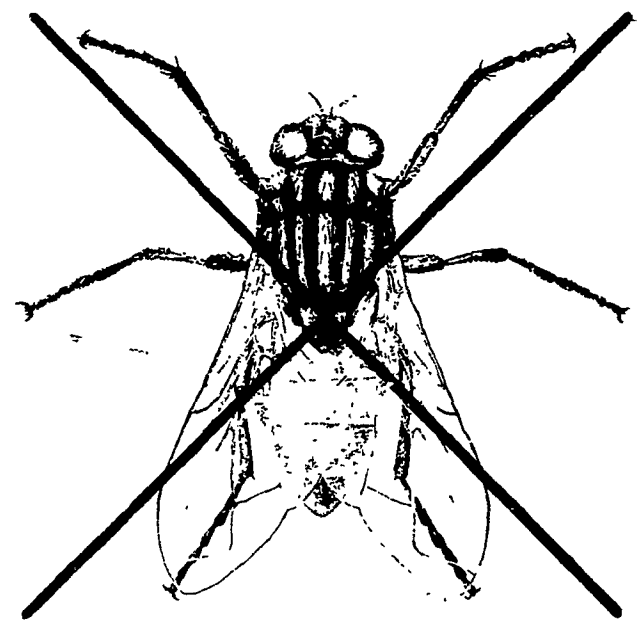
control profit-robbing flies

Feeding Rabon® Oral Larvicide turns your herd into an effective fly control army that kills lace flies, horn flies, stable flies and house flies before they take wing. ROL passes through cattle to activate their manure — destroying all four flies' larvae before they rob you of profits. It is approved for lactating dairy cattle. Flies are more than a nuisance. They spread disease and reduce milk production.

The time to start your ROL fly control program is this spring with all summer follow-through.



Try Rabon® now and flies won't get off the ground.

Md. ag leaders seek ways to stimulate farm economy

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland's top agricultural officials will join with their counterparts from across the country in Washington next month to pool ideas to stimulate the agricultural economy.

The occasion will be the annual mid-year conference of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture which will be turned into a national meeting on improving the farm economy through marketing. Attending from Maryland will be State Secretary of Agriculture Wayne A. Cawley, Jr., Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Hugh E. Binks and Ernest C. Shea, director of the Maryland Department of Agriculture's Division of Agricultural Development and Marketing.

According to Cawley, the meeting will zero in on ways of assisting the ailing farm economy by studying and identifying techniques that can be adopted now to stimulate markets for U.S. food, feed and fiber, both at home and abroad.

"Maryland has a vital stake in such a stimulation," Cawley says, "In 1981 we produced our all-time record corn crop and had a big wheat crop. Nationally, supplies of corn and wheat are immense. Anything to stimulate markets for corn and wheat will help Maryland farmers.

"The state is also home for three large-scale grain exporting terminals in the Port of Baltimore. Anything to stimulate grain export activity will help payrolls in Baltimore for dock workers, railroad workers, ship chandlers and so on."

Continuing on, Cawley noted that, "A stagnant agricultural economy holds back the entire economy because agriculture is an important off-farm job generator. For every farm job, the cycle creates 10 off-farm jobs. If we can revive agriculture we can get the economic wheels of this country moving again.

"At present, agriculture is burdened with many surpluses and declining margins. If we don't get things turned around quickly this will put a lot of farmers out of business and result in decreased 1982 production which will produce higher unit costs and result in higher consumer prices in the near future.

"Ag exports are our nation's leading dollar earner when it comes to the U.S. balance of payments. Last year alone, we had a favorable trade balance in agricultural products of near $30 billion", Cawley said.

Besides agricultural officials, the meeting, which will run from March 8-10, will draw a large attendance of commodity group officials, Congressional representatives, Federal officials, and others.

The program will explore methods of increasing exports, the use of barter agreements, the establishment of export trading companies, the aggressive use of long and short term revolving credit at competitive rates, improvements in domestic marketing programs, promoting farmer to consumer direct marketing, removal of tariff and non-tariff trade barriers and removal of other restraints to trade.

largest industry. It's assets today total nearly one trillion dollars. That amount is equal to almost 90 percent of the total assets of all manufacturing corporations in this country.

Also, agriculture is this country's largest employer (outside the government itself). Around 15 million people work in some phase of agriculture—the growing, the storing, transporting, processing, merchandising and marketing of all farm commodities.

Also, I think we're all aware that agriculture makes a tremendous contribution to the U.S. balance of payments. Farm exports last year totaled over 45 billion dollars, giving us a surplus of 26.7 billion in agriculture products. That went a long way toward helping us pay for the imported oil bill.

We are constantly hearing and reading the economists of our country proclaiming that the U.S. has fallen behind Japan, West Germany and other countries in productivity. They have completely overlooked the fact that the productivity gains of the farmers outstrip those of any other type of industry in this country or in any other country.

This current generation of U.S. farmer produces over 75 percent more crops than their fathers did on the same number of acres. An hour of farm labor in 1981 produced 14 times as much food as it did only 60 years ago.

As a result, food in this country is one heck of a good buy. That's something that most people overlook when they are grumbling about high prices. The United States families now spend approximately 14 percent of their incomes for food. This compares with 34 percent in the Soviet Union, 23 percent in Japan, 59 percent in India, 41 percent in Brazil, 60 percent in Mainland China, 41 percent in Mexico, 20 percent in France, 19 percent in England and on and on. The people of United States spend far and away the lowest percentage of their spendable income for food than any country in the world.

Due to better productivity on the farms, an hour of factory wages today buys four times as much chicken as it did 30 years ago, three times as many eggs, 70 percent more milk, and so on.

I don't think we should forget that farmers are also large consumers. For example, the annual purchases for farm machinery, farm tractors, trucks and other vehicles total 14 billion dollars. For fuel, lubricants, maintenance of vehicle and equipment, the farmer spends over 13 billion dollars a year.

Agriculture uses about six and one-half million tons of steel every year. That is enough to account for 40 thousand jobs in the steel industry. Farmers use a tremendous amount of electricity, 33 billion kilowatt hours in a year. That's more than is used in homes of New England, Maryland, Kentucky and Washington, D.C. combined.

Incidently, farmers also pay an enormous amount of taxes. Last year they paid over 8 billion dollars.

The farmers today are one of the last vestiges of the independent entrepreneurs. As such, they're not very good at banding together and making their needs and desires known in the political world. They are better now than they used to be, but it's difficult to get a group of farmers to all agree on the same thing. That is why there's more than one farm organization. The interest of the wheat farmer may not be (and in many cases cannot be) the same as a rice farmer, a peanut farmer, a cotton farmer, or a corn farmer. As a result, it's difficult for them to get together and agree on a course of action.

But in this country today if you have no political clout, you have no clout at all. Thus, the farmer and those who are dependent on what happens to the farmer are at the mercy of the Congressmen who come from the center of the big cities and whose interest seems to be pointed only toward having the lowest possible food prices for their constituents. What they have forgotten is that as the farmer is pushed back, some of the people they represent can also be hurt (such as steel workers and auto workers).

I think it's time for all of us to let our national and state representatives know that, whether they are willing to admit it or not, the farmer is now and always has been the backbone of our country.

Stop using them as a "whipping boy" and stop "playing games" with them in the operation of their business. Instead, help them to do what they do well and that's FARM.

Hogmen:
Hear Merrill Lynch tell how you could lock in full-grown profits on your hogs right now.

At our next Merrill Lynch seminar, you'll learn the ins and outs of hedging in hog futures.

We'll show how you could assure yourself a known profit margin months before your hogs are finished. Why you could make money even when prices go down. Five differences between hedging and speculating. You'll also learn:

- How hedging could help you get bigger loans from your banker.
- How a "partial hedge" could offset errors in judgement.
- 4 pitfalls to avoid in placing a hedge.
- How to get an alternative market to your regular buyer.
- 3 dangers of not hedging.

The seminar is free. But space is limited. So reserve your seats now.

Date: Tuesday, March 16th

Md. names soybean yield winners

COLLEGE PARK, MD. — Soybean yield honors for 1981 were shared up and down the Eastern Shore during an awards presentation Tuesday Feb. 23, at Easton which highlighted the seventy-fifth annual meeting of the Maryland Crop Improvement Association.

Ted Smith of Princess Anne had the top yield of 66.5 bushels per acre. He won with full-season Essex soybeans in the non-irrigated category.

Close behind was Fowling Creek Farms of Harmony with a yield of 65.0 bushels per acre. This entry was full-season Union Soybeans on irrigated land.

In the no-till category, Charles and John M. Haines of Sudlersville won high honors with 62.32 bushels of Union soybeans per acre on irrigated land.

Arthur W. Lankford, Jr., of Pocomoke City had the top nonirrigated no-till entry with 62.2 bushels of Union soybeans per acre in 7-inch rows.

Smith used Surflan and Treflan herbicides for weed control in his winning soybean yield program.

Fowling Creek Farms used Lasso and Dinitro herbicides for pre-emergent weed control, with Blazer as a post-emergent week control.

Both of the top no-till growers used identical herbicide programs involving paraquat, Lasso, and Lorox.

The official statewide corn and soybean yield contest have been conducted each year snce 1952 as part of the crop improvement programs of the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service. Yield measurements are supervised by Extension agricultural agents.

another had 107 lbs. a day on her first test.

His feeding includes grain five times a day, hay 10 times a day and eight ounces of vegetable oil for the high producers over 80 or 90 lbs. When off oil, they get more corn silage.

Another interesting sidelight to the two smaller producers is that they don't forage test.

Lehman is also strict on culling.

"If a heifer doesn't make 16,000 to 17,000 lbs. her first year, I find her hard to keep," he said.

In a Monday afternoon session, another panel took a look at milk marketing and concentrated primarily on the statewide referendum scheduled to be conducted in May on a 10-cent per hundredweight mandatory assessment for promotion purposes.

Participating in the panel were Steve Graybeal, National Milk Producers Federation; James Sumner, Bureau of Markets, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture; Donald Duncan, Keystone Milk Marketing Council; Daniel L. Martin, Interstate Milk Producers; and Alpheus L. Ruth, Lehigh Valley Cooperative.

The representatives essentially repeated previously reported stands on the referendum with all generally in favor except Ruth. Lehigh Valley, which actively promotes its own products, remains in favor of brand name advertising and not the generic type, which is required under the referendum.

In response to a question, it was explained that juggers will be treated just like any other producer, assessed the same rate on their production.

Discussing the matching of crop programs to meet herd needs, Roland Freund, area Farm Management Agent, said that "the trouble with agriculture today is that credit had been too easy to get when interest rates were lower and a lot of farmers made too many foolish investments."

Freund compared the feed and acreage requirements of various cropping programs for a dairy operation and also plugged in costs, including those for storage.

"Farmers have concentrated too much on labor efficiency in their operations," Freund said.

"And they've forgotten about land efficiency and the overall economic efficiency of the operation.

"When you buy larger tractors just to tear up the same number of acres quicker, the economic efficiency is negative."

Other topics covered at the Dairy Days were stray voltage by Joseph McCurdy, Penn State ag engineer; feeding and managing for good health and production by Dr. Richard Card, veterinarian, Frederick, Md.; and putting SCC data to good use by William Heald, Penn State dairy specialist.

Sam Hostetler Proved It To Himself:

"The ENERGY-PAK system is the best move I've made in my farming operation."

"Our production is more even, with good feed all the time. It's 100% better than round bales by comparison."

"We save a lot of labor with ENERGY-PAK. The fill system works very easily and my wife and I do all the filling ourselves."

"Bottom unloading is definitely superior in cold weather situations. At 22 below, we stopped using our conventional top unloading silo and fed completely from the ENERGY-PAK with no problems."

"We hit our highest milk production point ever when we fed exclusively from the ENERGY-PAK."

PA potato growers

Following the hearing, growers with more than 25 acres in potatoes will receive ballots. Votes will be tallied in April and if passed, the two cent assessment would be effective July 1.

"The two cents will be helpful, but is nothing compared to Idaho, which has a 10 cent assessment and is still asking for federal help," noted Reiter.

Saving Pennsylvania's research program is a vital step for growers to survive in a market swamped with western potatoes.

During the early 1930's, Pennsylvania grew 200,000 acres of potatoes for the mid-Atlantic market. Today, eastern growers farm approximately 20,000 acres for the same market. One half of the potato crop is used in the potato chip industry. The other half is marketed as a round white boiling potato. In addition, the variety of eastern potatoes has changed very little in the past 50 years, according to MacKenzie. He explained that developing new varieties requires a long term program, hence the importance of the research farm.

By contrast, western production has increased, benifitting from intensive efforts to develop potato production technology and from government programs subsidizing potato farm development.

As a result, western potatoes are transported across the country and once delivered, consumed as a variety of products, ranging from fast food French fries to the famous Idaho baked potato.

MacKenzie explained that money spent to irrigate the western potato and transport it across the country supports the belief that the revitalization of the Mid-Atlantic potato industry is neccessary.

If the program is to turn around, however, MacKenzie said changes are needed in storage, marketing, seed production and pesticide control.

According to MacKenzie and Extension agriculture engineer Joe McCurdy, most of Pennsylvania potatos are stored in bank barns, some which have been remodeled.

"The handling is atrocious," McCurdy remarked. But he noted that the present economy makes it more difficult for many farmers to spend money on correcting the problem.

Revitalizing the mid-Atlantic market calls for grower and consumer educational programs. Also, some growers and researchers have indicated that developing marketing cooperatives would make a major contribution. Currently, one co-op, the Pennsylvania Cooperative Potato Growers, Inc., includes roughly half of the state's growers.

The use of certified seed has contributed to the improvements of yield and quality in mid-Atlantic. However, to obtain certified seed, most growers must purchase seed stocks from other production regions, which reduces the varieties available. A Foundation Seed Farm is then needed to develop disease-free potato varieties suitable for production.

According to MacKenzie, the mid-Atlantic potato industry is presently dependent on a pecticide, "umbrella." In order to increase production in varieties that date back to the 1930's, farmers have been forced to use large amounts of fertilizer and decrease their crop rotation. Heavy pesticide use resulted from a combination of those production changes.

In the future, research should be directed at weaning the potato industry away from heavy pesticide use and toward pest management.

Some producers and researchers have charged that the costly revitalization of the mid-Atlantic potato industry may seem relatively cheap when compared to the alternative of hauling potatoes from the Pacific Northwest.

MUELLER Milk Coolers®

You've known about the reputation of Mueller Milk Coolers for years. You know it's the Number One Cooler selected by dairymen around the world because of its automatic washing system, its efficient temperature control and agitation system, its cooling efficiency, reliability and durability.

MUELLER Refrigerated Receiver

Now Mueller has added something new in milk cooling. The Refrigerated Receiver. Milk travels through the pipeline to the stainless steel Refrigerated Receiver, where it is rapidly cooled to 55° F. or lower. The milk is then pumped to the milk cooler. The Refrigerated Receiver retards bacteria growth and saves money by reducing cooling time while promoting conditions for higher butterfat counts.

Farm family offers love

Janell is braced by more than physical supports

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

Janell Conley is a three-year-old farm girl who is blond, blue-eyed and has a pleasant outgoing personality sure to win the hearts of all who meet her.

Janell does not run around the farm freely, however. When she goes to the barn she usually travels in a wagon pulled by a boy-sized tractor powered by her older brother.

The fact that she goes to the barn at all is itself miraculous because her prognosis at birth was, in the words of her mother, "bleak." Janell is special: she was born with spinabifida.

Amos and Ruth Conley, Janell's parents, knew that their expected child would be born breach, but they were not prepared for the discovery that she was seriously handicapped and might not survive at all.

Looking back, Ruth can talk quite openly about the life-threatening ordeals the family went through in the first few weeks of Janell's life. She even manages a smile as she recalls the grim reality they faced.

Spinabifida is commonly called open spine, and it is a condition where both the spinal cord and the spinal column are exposed. As a result of this the infant is paralyzed from the area of the lesion down.

Janell was taken immediately from Osteopathic Hospital where she was born to Children's Hospital in Philadelphia. But after one day shewassent home and the Conley's were given little encouragement that she would survive. It was a difficult time for Ruth and Amos. "They made it look so bleak," Ruth recalls. "It was a frustration, not knowing where to go or what to do."

Janell spent a week at their R3 Mount Joy farm home and then developed meningitis which is common if the lesion is not closed surgically, an operation that normally takes place within two days of birth. She was hospitalized at Osteopathic Hospital for 24 days until the infection was under control.

At birth Janell also suffered from hydracephalous, or fluid on the brain. Ruth says, "They almost always develop hydracephalous, but Janell already had it at birth."

However, after her recovery from the infection, Ruth relates, "Her head started growing." It enlarged nearly two inches in 10 days an alarming situation which took the Conleys back to Children's Hospital. The enlargement was caused in part because her lesion was healing itself.

Just six weeks old, Janell was given a shunt which drained the fluid from the brain to the abdominal cavity. The shunt has enough length to last her until she is five, but Ruth says matter-of-factly, "She is very fortunate that she still has her first one."

As Ruth sits in her large farm kitchen easily referring to these highly complex medical terms, one can only be impressed with her understanding of her daughter's problem. She laughs and says, "You ask. And they gave us a lot of books. We learned a lot but we still have a lot to learn too."

A family portrait: Amos Conley holds son Daniel and Ruth holds Janell while Dianne looks on. Ronald missed the picture because he was busy at school.

Part of her understanding and part of her acceptance came from the enormous amount of support the family received from others. Ruth said, "We had one friend who had a child born six months earlier with the problem. And a lot of parents got in touch with us."

She continues, "In this area we are really fortunate in what we have. The S. June Smith Center has been really beneficial. They are very helpful there. The teachers and the physical therapists really did a lot for us. The first months are very critical in the child's development.

When we first went to the school they told us they were doing something and helped us know what we should do. We are very glad for school because it gives her extra stimulus."

Now Janell is a regular student at the S. June Smith Center in Lancaster, having begun there at age seven months. Ruth says, "She started in the infant stimulation class, one day a week. They set up individual programs."

From the infant stim class, Janell progressed to the toddler class which met two mornings a week from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. From there she moved to the pre-school class where she works with things like shapes, colors and other nursery school activities. She is also seen regularly by a physical therapist. She is in that class three days a week, and gets transportation direct from her home.

On Tuesdays and Thursdays Janell visits Easter Seals where she is learning to walk with her brand new braces. Ruth says, "It helped. It really got her moving and helps her have self-confidence. Her initial prognosis was extremely poor. She's come so far. We are very thankful for the facilities and for the professional help."

Janell just passed a milestone — she has been walking since the new year. She had foot surgery last summer in preparation for the necessary braces to bring her to this step. She wears the braces continually except for brief periods of crawling and sleeping.

"She likes the braces and asks to put them on." Ruth explains. "And I don't think there is anybody more excited about her first pair of shoes than she was."

Eventually Janell will learn to use crutches, but for now she is learning to navigate with the use of a walker. The walker she uses is a miniature version of an adult walker, and was assembled by her father. They have a folding walker to go to school with Janell, but the homemade one is superior in many respects.

How did having a handicapped child affect the other members of the family? Ruth says, "We just loved her from the start. After she got to responding to them the children became very attached. She just fit in as part of the family."

In addition to Janell, the Conleys' children are Ronald, 6; Dianne, 5; and Daniel, 18 months.

Ruth says the other children like to take Janell for wagon rides and enjoy pushing her on the swing set. This will be the first summer she is mobile so Ruth doesn't know what to expect.

Although she needs special attention and extra care, Ruth says they do not especially try to protect her and they take her everywhere the family goes. "She's always really friendly and yells 'hi' to everyone in the grocery store." She adds, "You live with constant concern."

The Conleys are members of a Spina Bifida Association, just chartered as part of the national association. Ruth says, "We meet once every two months and have speakers come in in various areas of child development. It is very beneficial and hospitals usually notify us of spinabifida births."

She feels the association can be beneficial to families facing the experience they are going through and adds, "We appreciated that others shared with us. Every child is different but you have a lot in common."

Ruth feels the support of other parents is helpful because "you realize you don't have the biggest problem."

Janell has a very pleasant personality which makes her easy to care for. Ruth says, "She has always been a very pleasant child and is content when she's feeling well."

Currently the Conleys are working on one of Janell's biggest problems — a poor appetite. She's a slow eater and want's to be fed, but she's capable of feeding herself. We're working on it," Ruth states.

Other potential problems which Janell faces in the immediate future are bladder infections or respiratory infections.

Furthermore, Ruth notes, "She will never have normal bladder and bowel control, and will always need some sort of assistance." Intermittent cathterization is the most common solution to this problem.

Part of Janell's ongoing therapy involves strengthening her arm muscles to make walking easier. Exercises are part of her daily routine, and Amos often works with her on some of the exercises to build up her strength.

With the numerous trips to the hospitals, Ruth also expresses appreciation to the strong family support she has had from close relatives. The other children often play with cousins when hospital visits are necessary.

Janell's cheerful outlook could be an inspiration to all, but it is the mere fact of her being here that provides the inspiration.

Ruth says simply, "I think God did a lot for her. We attribute her healing to that."

USDA revises applesauce grade standards

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has revised U.S. grade standards for applesauce and canned apple juice.

The changes, requested by the processed apple industry, bring the standards into line with current marketing practices, according to an USDA official.

The revised standards, which become effective March 11, lower the minimum soluble solids (Brix) content requirement for U.S. Grade A sweetened applesauce from 16.5 degrees Brix to 15.5. The requirement for U.S. Grade A canned apple juice will be lowered from 11.5 degrees Brix to 11. Brix content indicates the concentration of sugar in the solution.

Charles Brader, a fruit and vegetable marketing official with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said the changes are warranted by consumer preference for less sweet apple juice and applesauce, increased use of more varieties of apples in processing, varying growing conditions and different processing techniques.

The standards for canned apple juice provide for two styles of U.S. Grade A juice - Style 1, Clear and Style 11, Cloudy. The standards previously allowed a slight amount of sediment or residue in both styles. Under the revised standards, Style 11 may contain a moderate amount of sediment.

The revisions provide uniform descriptive terms for color and flavor of apple juice and for texture of applesauce. Brader said the descriptive terms for these quality factors are in line with those used in other U.S. grade standards and do not affect quality requirements.

USDA's Agriculture Marketing Service will retain the two grades, U.S. Grade A and U.S. Grade B, for all canned apple juice and applesauce. However, the descriptive terms "U.S. Fancy" and "U.S. Choice" will be dropped.

USDA established grade standards and provides official grading services for many food products. Use of the grade standards and grading services is voluntary and paid for by the user.

Microwave ovens, dishes growing in popularity

Microwaving — known by many as the 20th century answer to fast-paced cooking — has placed its foot into the kitchens of many reluctant non-conformists' homes. And these same "non-conformists" are finding the microwave to be the joy and help they've longed for.

These same cooks are the ones leading the search for varied microwave recipes. This search was in evidence last week as Lancaster County Extension home economist Doris Thomas conducted workshops on microwave cooking. Both afternoon and evening sessions each were attended by over 100 potential 'microwavists.'

If you didn't have opportunity to attend the seminar and would like to have tasted the delicious dishes Doris made; then tare out this page. It's full of those microwave tempters.

MEATLOAF
2 eggs, lightly beaten
1 1/2 lb. lean ground beef
1/4 c. fine bread crumbs
1 small onion, chopped
2 T. Worcestershire sauce
1 t. seasoned salt
1/2 t. dry mustard
1/4 t. pepper

Mix the above ingredients together thoroughly. Spread mixture in loaf, round, ring-shaped or 6 individual dishes. Spread 2 T. of catsup, steak, barbecue or chili sauce over the top of the meat mixture.

Microwave on High Power as follows: Round — 12 to 18 minutes; Ring-Shaped — 8 to 13 minutes; Loaf — 13 to 18 minutes and Individual — 10 to 13 minutes.

Rotate after one-half the cooking time. Let stand 5 to 10 minutes.

NOTE: Meatloaves remain more moist when microwaved than they do when baked conventionally, so the above recipe contains no milk or water. If you want to adapt a favorite meatloaf for microwaving, reduce the liquid by about half.

HOT SHRIMP DIP
8 oz. cream cheese
1 can cream of shrimp soup
1 T. sherry
1 T. lemon juice

Combine cream cheese and cream of shrimp soup in glass bowl. Place in microwave oven for 3 minutes. Remove from oven and stir mixture. Add sherry and lemon juice.

EASY MACARONI AND CHEESE
2 c. macaroni
1/2 c. undiluted evaporated milk
1/2 c. grated, sharp cheddar cheese

Cook macaroni. In 2-quart glass casserole, blend macaroni and milk. Sprinkle with grated cheese. Heat 3 to 5 minutes, rotating 1/4 turn halfway through cooking time. Rest covered, 10 minutes. Serves 4 to 6.

Seasonings such as thyme, saffron, oregano, etc. may be blended with the macaroni and milk. Garnish with chives, parsley, bacon bits, etc.

SOMETHING SPECIAL CHEESECAKE
2 eggs
4 3-oz. pkg. cream cheese
1/2 c. sugar
1 t. vanilla
1/3 c. semi-sweet chocolate morsels
1 9-inch prepared crumb pie shell

Prepare crumb pie shell (also included on this page). Beat eggs, cream cheese, sugar and vanilla with mixer until smooth and creamy; pour into crumb crust. In a small glass dish, melt chocolate morsels 1 1/2 minute. Spoon in drops over pie filling and swirl with a fork. Heat 4 minutes, rotating 1/4 turn every minute. When pie has cooled to room temperature, chill until serving.

NOTE: If desired, soften cream cheese 30 to 45 seconds in microwave.

CRUMB PIE CRUST
1 c. crushed crumbs, graham crackers or vanilla wafers
2 to 3 T. sugar
1/4 c. butter

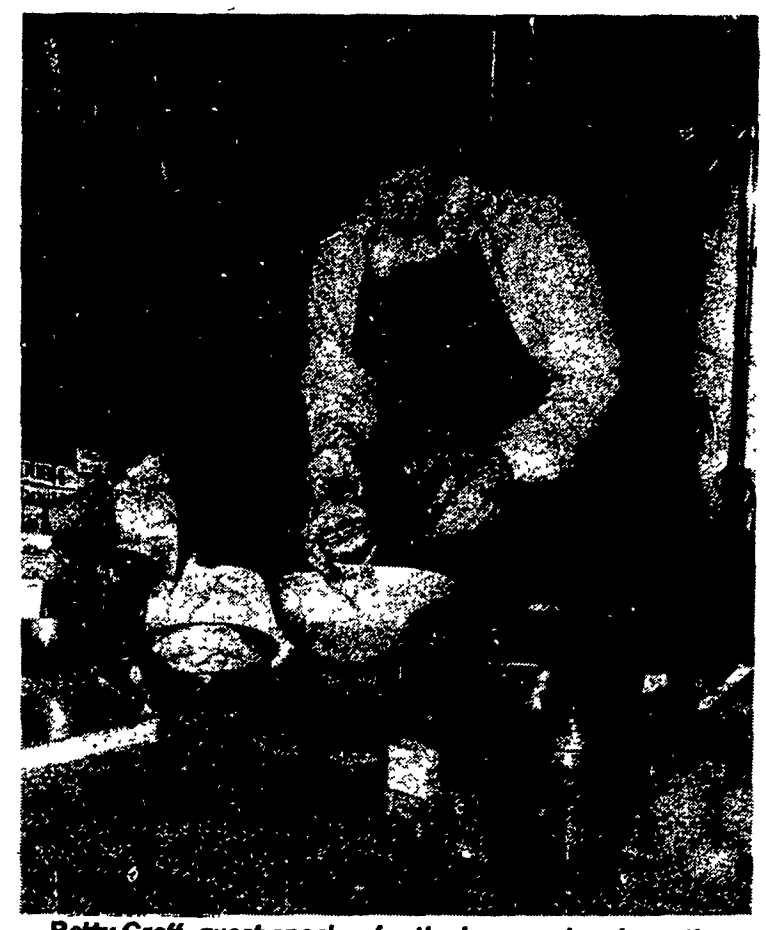
Combine crumbs, sugar and butter in 9-inch glass pie plate. Heat 2 minutes, stirring after 1 minute to blend ingredients. Press evenly onto sides and bottom of pie dish. Heat 1 minute to "set" crust. Makes 1 9-inch crust.

NOTE: For chocolate crumb crust, add 1 1/2 c. chocolate cookie crumbs to the sugar and butter in recipe above. Cook as directed.

SWEET AND SOUR PORK
1/2 lb. boneless pork, cut in strips
1 T. cooking oil
1 c. zucchini slices, halved
1/2 c. sliced unpared apple
4 t. cornstarch
2 T. brown sugar
2/3 c. pineapple juice
2 T. vinegar
1 T. soy sauce
Chinese noodles or rice

In 1-quart casserole, combine pork and oil. Heat, uncovered at HIGH for 3 minutes, stirring after 2 minutes. Remove meat and set aside. Add zucchini and apple to dish; cook, covered, at HIGH for 3 minutes, till tender, stirring once. Return meat to mixture.

Combine cornstarch and brown sugar; blend in pineapple juice, vinegar, and soy sauce. Add to meat mixture; cook, uncovered, at HIGH for 3 minutes, till thickened and bubbly, stirring once or twice. Serve over Chinese noodles or cooked rice with soy sauce. Makes 2 servings.



Betty Groff, guest speaker for the homemakers' meeting at the Holstein Convention in Harrisburg last week, provides us with more recipes for your enjoyment. Look for them in a future issue of Lancaster Farming. So if As a restaurant owner and author of two cookbooks, Betty has many incidents to relate both about food preparation and about those who come from all over to enjoy the find food she serves. A former dairy farmer's wife, Betty says she prefers to use only real cream and real butter in her restaurant and in the recipes she uses in her cookbooks.

CHILI
1 lb. lean ground beef
1 medium onion, sliced
1 medium green pepper, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
1 can stewed tomatoes
1 can kidney beans, drained
1 can tomato sauce
1 1/2 to 2 t. chili powder
1 t. salt
1/4 t. oregano

Chili and spaghetti sauce do not require standing time to complete cooking, but the benefit from advance preparation. Make them early in the day, or even the day before, to blend and enhance flavors. They reheat easily for serving. If you plan to refrigerate them, you can use regular ground beef. The fat will solidify and be easy to remove. Select lean ground beef if you wish to serve them immediately.

Crumble ground beef into a 2-quart casserole. Microwave at HIGH power 3 1/2 to 4 1/2 minutes until meat is almost cooked. Pour off fat. Break up meat into smaller pieces. Stir in raw vegetables. Microwave 4 to 5 minutes until vegetables are tender. Stir in remaining ingredients. Cover. Microwave 5 minutes at HIGH power. Remove cover and stir. Microwave uncovered at 50 percent power (Medium for 20 to 25 minutes) stirring at least once. If you like very thick chili, drain the stewed tomatoes. Makes 2 quarts.

NACHOS
16 large tortilla chips
4 oz. shredded Monterey Jack cheese
2 T. shredded cheddar cheese

Place a sheet of wax paper on a 10-inch glass or paper plate. Cover with tortilla chips. Sprinkle with cheese. Microwave at 50 percent power 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 minutes, until cheese melts, rotating once or twice.

CORRECTION — If you cut out last week's "Easy Peanut Brittle" recipe, you may want to make a correction on it. The third to the last line reads "Let cook ½ to 1 hour", and it should read let "cool" ½ to 1 hour. Also, "when cook" should read "when cool."

QUESTION — Could someone please share a recipe for "Chocolate Shoo-fly pie?" I ate it once and cannot find a recipe anywhere.

Leona Spangler, Spring Mills, PA

ANSWERS — For the cooks who have requested recipes comes quite a few at the end of the recipe section this week. How foods rank in American homes

LANCASTER — If your family eats veal, lamb, or frozen fruits, you're a distinct 1-in-20 American minority.

A nationwide food consumption survey shows that fewer than 5 percent of 15,000 sample households ate these foods during the week they were surveyed. This sample is representative of the U.S. population.

While at first blush that may seem a discouraging statistic to producers of these products, it also indicates great market expansion potential if ways can be found to make them more appealing to American consumers.

On the other side of the data table, 99 percent of these households consumed some dairy product, according to Tonay Gallo and Jim Blaylock of USDA's Economic Research Service.

However, there were wide variations within each food category: About 94 out of every 100 families consumed fresh milk, but only a fourth used processed milk or cream.

Meats were also very popular, with 96 percent using some kind of meat during the survey week. But while 91 out of 100 ate beef, only 4 in 5 consumed pork, a third ate no poultry, and half did without fish. Veal and lamb, as noted, made it to very few tables.

About 93 out of 100 households used cereal products, 95 percent consumed bread, and four-fifths ate breakfast cereals. Almost half the homes used flour.

Fresh fruits were eaten in 78 percent of the homes, citrus fruits in 60 percent, and fresh vegetables in 87 percent of the homes surveyed.

Among beverages, coffee is still America's most popular drink at home. About 4 in 5 homes consumed coffee, while half also drank tea.

Among other foods, sugar products were eaten in 92 percent of the homes, and fats and oils were consumed in 96 percent of the homes tested.

Gallo cautions that the study had two limitations that may color its results:

—Consumption levels for certain food items that are more commonly eaten in restaurants — soft drinks, veal, and lamb — may be understated by the survey;

—If a food item wasn't eaten during the survey week, data would show that the item wasn't consumed by that household during the year. This might not be true, especially for some seasonal food items.

Despite these limitations, Gallo says that the study offers valuable insight to researchers who study nutrition and individual demand for food products.

Food & Fun

What foods can I grow?

LANCASTER — Have you ever picked a red, juicy tomato right off the vine and bitten into it? Or pulled a fresh, crisp carrot right out of the ground, wiped the dirt off, and munched down on it? Or have you ever broken off fresh lettuce leaves from the plant and chewed them down like a rabbit?

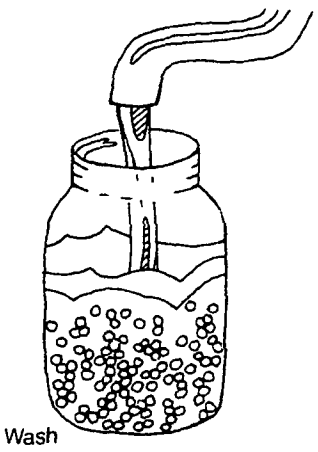
If you haven't, you've missed a lot of fun - the same kind of fun dad and mom get from watching their crops grow. You've also missed some mighty good eating too.

But if you have, then you already know how much fun gardening can be. And you know what it means to grow nutritious foods that are really great to eat. You also know that gardening is work - sometimes hard work - but the food you get from it makes it fun work.

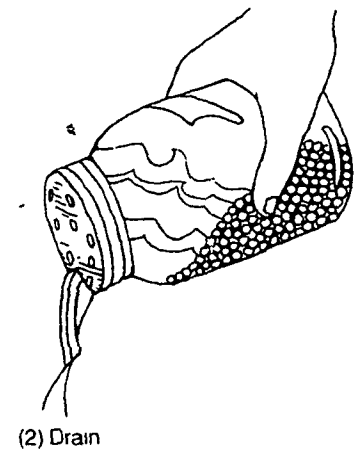
One of the nice things about having your own garden is that it's something you can do outdoors or indoors, in the country or in the city. It doesn't matter that it's only March for some gardening.

To help you get started, why not grow bean sprouts for a delicious salad?

Growing Bean Sprouts



(1) Wash



(2) Drain

(3) Let stand

You might want to start with something easy — like bean sprouts, for instance. To grow bean sprouts, all you need are some beans, a screw-top jar, water, and a little time. Buy some Mung beans from a seed catalog or a "natural" food store. Then follow these three steps: (1) Wash a half cup of the beans and soak them overnight in cold water; (2) Drain off the water. Punch holes in the lid of your screw-top jar. Put the beans in and screw on the lid; and (3) Put the jar in a dark place.

Rinse the beans with water and drain them two or three times each day. Each time put the jar back in a dark place. The sprouts grow very fast — in fact, they'll be ready to eat in 5 days. They're really good in salads, or cooked with other vegetables.

Bean sprouts, of course, are only the beginnings of plants. If they were to grow much bigger and develop green leaves and stems, they would need more than just the water you would give them to make sprouts. They would need soil, light, and air.

DID YOU KNOW?

- Italian pasta (noodles) first came from China.
- French croissants (rolls) were first made in Hungary.
- The Irish Potato got its start in South and Central America.
- And the good, old American hamburger actually came from Germany...from a town called Hamburg, of course.

New club starts

NORRISTOWN — A 4-H club featuring home-ec type projects such as sewing, foods and crafts will be starting Tuesday, March 23 at 7 p.m. in the Plymouth Meeting area.

Youths ages 8 and 9 years old in third or fourth grade are invited to join this beginning every other Tuesday and will be led by two women in the local area.

Parents are especially encouraged to attend the first meeting with their youngster to learn all about 4-H and help the club make plans for the coming year. Parents may also volunteer to help with the group. The more parents we have helping, the more young people we can accept.

To join the club or to find out more information, please call Helaine Brown, 4-H agent, at 277-0574, 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

This panel of three farmers and local conservation district administrator Tom Johnston led a discussion entitled "Our experience with no-till" at the No-Till Conference, last Friday, at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster. From left to right are Herb Myer, West Lampeter Twp.; Dick Neff, Manor Twp.; Ed Harnish, Bart Twp.; and Tom Johnston.

No-Till Conference features "Voice of experience"

LANCASTER — Questions were answered by successful no-till users for nearly 75 farmers and conservation-minded landowners at the Lancaster County no-till conference last Friday, at the Farm and Home Center.

Following a slide program, "A Better Way," Amos Funk, director of the Lancaster Co. Conservation District addressed the need for conservation tillage because funds are not available for permanent practices such as controlled terraces, etc.

Offering fertilizing and liming practices and "No-till grain and forage seeding," was Bill McClellan, Penn State agronomist.

Highlighting the morning's program was a panel of farmers relating their experiences with no-till — all presenting very positive results.

On the panel was: Dick Nett, Manor Township; Ed Harnish, Bart Township; and Herbert Myer, West Lampeter Township.

Neff related his experience to the audience with 1972 Hurricane Agnes. He began no-tilling in 1970 and said that during Agnes, his water run-off was almost clear. He also reported a three-year corn average of 178 bushels per acre.

Myer's experience with no-till comes from vertical till ridge planting. When the corn is off in the fall he uses his chisel plow and pulls up virtually no clay. He said most farmers using the chisel plow pull up a lot of clay and that "the only thing clay is good for is making bricks."

Harnish was able to report 190 bushels of corn per acre for 1981.

The afternoon session was full of programs specially designed for the no-till user. Included among the topics was: "Insect problems in corn and soybeans" by county Extension agent Arnold Lueck; "Observations of no-till at the Penn State Research Farm by John Yocum, farm manager; "Herbicides for no-till" by Dave Cote of Chevron; and "Spraying Equipment" by Don Daum, Penn State ag engineer.—DK

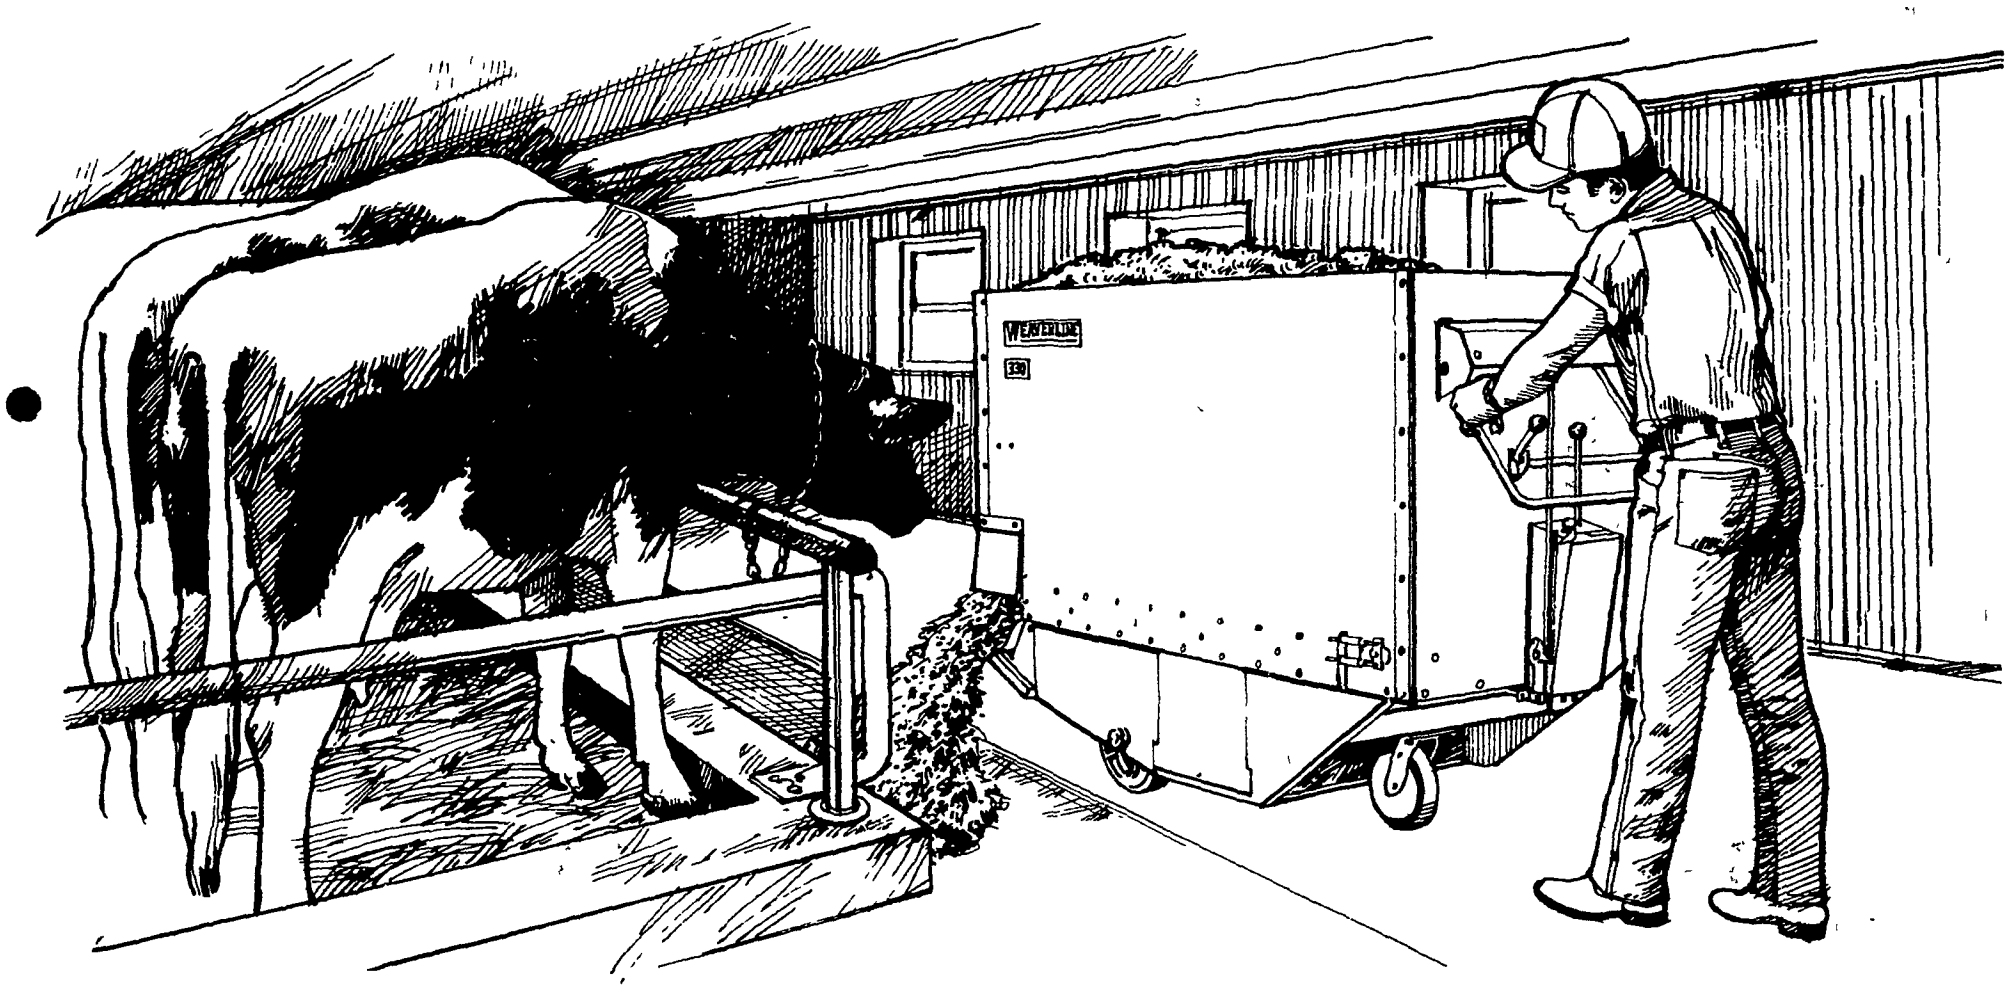
Fast food for your dairy herd!



Six controlled unloading rates—from 30 bushels in 3½ minutes up to 30 bushels in 35 seconds! With just a flip of the handle.

Load it full. Throw it in gear. And you're on your way to feed silage, haylage or any other feed to your dairy herd—quickly—conveniently.

The Weaverline operating control panel puts you in complete command. As your Series 300 cart moves into position in front of each stall, set the auger and apron-system indicator to discharge just the right amount of feed. Then shut it off and move on to the next cow. Or if you want, lay a continuous flow of feed. Front-end side discharge with flexible deflector makes it easy to put your feed right where you want it.

Whether you choose the 30 bushel model or compact 24 bushel size, you can depend on Weaverline advanced engineering design. Upkeep, time and labor saved will more than pay for the cost of a new Weaverline Series 300 transport cart.

Just look at these advanced features!

Proven unloading-drive linkage

Smooth-running roller-chain and belt-drive combination provides six conveyor speeds plus individual on/off control of upper and lower sets of augers.

Controlled unloading

Apron conveyor and two pairs of augers can be controlled individually. Upper augers prevent bridging. Lower augers and conveyor control discharge flow.

Convenient power pack

Weaverline four-unit battery pack provides plenty of transport and unloading power. Batteries roll out either side for quick servicing. To recharge, just plug into charging receptacle from any 115 volt AC power source.

Two models

For maximum capacity, the Model 330 measures 81 inches long, 33 inches wide and holds 30 bushels. For tight corners, the compact Model 323 measures 69 inches long and 33 inches wide. Holds 24 bushels. Tricycle running gear, two wheel front, one rear, makes both units easy to turn—easy to guide. For dependable dairy feeding!

Cut your labor costs with this new Weaverline feed-handling system. Built to stand up to years of heavy loads, Series 300 carts are designed with larger discharge augers, more auger clearance, extra-heavy steel bottoms, stronger conveyor shafts and heavy-duty bumper guard shields. For a dairy feeding system that demands minimum maintenance and service, specify Weaverline. See these new Weaverline carts on display at your local dealer, or write Weaverline Corporation, Churchtown, PA 17555. Telephone (215) 445-6724.

ATTENTION MR. BEEF PRODUCER:

It makes a difference when you let these livestock auction market managers sell your cattle. They not only sell livestock, but PROMOTE their sale. And that brings you a better return usually than selling direct.
Why? Because there is competitive bidding under the livestock auction market system and the difference is between what livestock might just "sell" for, and what they are actually worth under the conditions of competitive bidding. Your marketman works at "selling" livestock.

Check with him and you just might find that you will get the little extra return that will mean the difference between profit and loss in your operation.

Check with these progressive marketmen!

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Since we pass but once through this life, I've always embraced the philosophy that we should see and do and learn all that we can on this one-way excursion.

And that's how I wound up in the arcade.

An arcade is home for those sophisticated bleeping, shirring, humming video games that have replaced the old ho-hum pinball machine as a youthful temptation. Heading the pack of computer game favorites is something called "Pac-Man."

I had often heard of this Pac Man character, usually tied in with our children's laments on how they were the lone deprived kids in this entire country lacking the home-computer video games. But I'd never met him face to face — in fact, ignorant as I was, I had never played any computer game.

So when we recently attended our Holstein convention, with a video arcade located prominently in the hotel lobby, I knew I had to grab this chance. After all, aren't conventions for learning new ideas?

Besides, how could I keep up with my children if I knew nothing of what they were talking about?

The venture turned into a cooperative one.

Financing came from an outside interest. A cooperative bull-stud representative, who overheard me confess my video wish, and forked over a quarter. (I was to discover later that two quarters are the norm for this machine to even come alive.)

Finally, the moment came when I could steal away to explore this arcade. Not wanting to venture into unknown territory alone, I invited along another adult video novice. And on our way, we rounded up a Holstein staffer for moral support, which turned out to be a crack-shot decision. He was a Pac-Man expert.

After feeding in our two quarters — my partner financed his own way — the TV-type screen lit up, and at last I was eyeballing this famous Pac-Man.

Cute. He's a yellow, round, blob, with a pie-shaped triangle mouth, and runs all over the screen through a computerized maze, gobbling up little dots. Players steer the blob with a sort of gear-shift lever. And scattered through the maze are bigger dots, which, when gobbled by Pac-Man earn the player points.

One catch. While Pac-Man is gobbling his way through the dots, other colored blobs are chasing him. If they gobble the yellow blob, before he gobbles sufficient big dots to keep them at bay, the player is sunk.

I was mostly sunk, at least during the first game when I was soundly clobbered by the opposing team.

With the loan of a second quarter, I turned the tables and won. And quit. Best to stop while on a winning streak.

Besides, I had run out of quarters and financiers to fund this fun new experience. Even the change-making machine ignored me.

I must be a bad risk.

If you've followed the advice this column has offered in the past several weeks, by now you have a drafted plan for your garden this summer. Now, aren't you glad you prepared ahead of time so that when the big time comes to plant, you won't be rushed with last minute details?

The next step in garden planning is to plan how you will treat your garden this year. What? No, we don't mean be nice to it, but treat it with fertilizer to satisfy nutrient needs.

Home gardeners have good news from lime and fertilizer studies at Penn State this year.

"Most gardens and vegetable fields have 'soil banks' rich in plant foods," says Cyril B. Smith, scientist in plant nutrition with the Agricultural Experiment Station at Penn State.

"Go easy in using chemical fertilizer this year — you could waste money and time," Smith added. "What is often needed is not a whole range of plant foods in large amounts but small quantities of certain nutrients to balance out the crops needs," he affirms.

He claimed the greatest efficiency takes place when just enough fertilizer is applied to satisfy current nutrient needs.

The Penn Stater strongly advised vegetable growers to use lime. He said nutrient studies of sweet corn showed that lime supplied or made available at least 40 percent of the plant foods needed beyond those already in the soil.

"With a good liming program, the vegetable grower is almost half way toward the goal of supplying needed plant food, "he noted. "We're finding commercial vegetable growers quite interested in our long-term studies, especially with fertilizer costs increasing,"he added.

He recommended having soil tested to determine lime and fertilizer needs. Soil sampling kits are available from county agricultural agents or from the Merkle Soil and Forage Testing Laboratory at University Park. The lab number is (814) 863-0841.

Surprisingly, one-third of the experiments over several years showed no crop response to added fertilizers. However, in experiments showing good responses, small amounts of fertilizer generally were used.

NEWARK, Del. — Two Extension programs for Delaware and Maryland home fruit growers have been scheduled for early March. The first, a Home Fruit Grower's Seminar, will take place from 7 to 9 p.m., Wednesday, March 10, at Weldin Hall of the United Methodist Church in Elkton, Md.

Topics to be discussed include, "Starting and Maintaining the Home Orchard," by Evan Milburn of Milburn Orchards; and "Home Fruit Disease and Insect Control," by Cecil County Extension agent Karen Gillam. (This meeting qualifies toward pesticide license re-registration.

The second program is a Home Fruit Tree Pruning Demonstration. This will take place Saturday, March 13, at 10 a.m. (rain date March 20 at the same time) at Milburn Orchard. Evan Milburn will be demonstrating pruning of young and mature apple trees. The orchard is located at the intersection of Barksdale and Appleton Roads approximately four miles north of Elkton and two miles east of Newark.

Both events are sponsored by the Extension services of Cecil and New Castle counties. For further information, in Delaware contact extension horticultural agent Dave Tatnall (738-2506) or, in Maryland, extension horticultural agent Karen Gillam (398-0200).

Corn Day gears growers for spring

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Staff Correspondent

HEIDLERSBURG — "Be efficient! We shouldn't plant a single acre of corn that you don't believe will turn a profit." The speakers were different and the mode of presentation varied, but they all presented variations on this theme at Adams County Corn day held recently at the Heidlersburg Fire Hall.

The day-long event, sponsored by Adams County Extension Service and Agribusiness serving Adams County, emphasized that efficiency in production and not simply increasing production can mean the difference between a loss or profit on their corn crop.

Recognized as winners of the five acre corn contest were Atlee Keefer and Don Hostetter, Hostetter Farm. Keffer's yield was 105.2 bushels per acre. Hostetter's yield of 176.8 bushels per acre topped the county contest and placed eighth in the state.

One of the highlights of the program was an open panel discussion on controlling troublesome weeds. Panel members included Willis McClellan, Penn State Extension agronomist, Daniel Winters, Ag Services, and Donald Hostetter, Hostetter Farms.

There was a lot of audience participation which covered prevention, commercial products used for control, application rates, and identification of common problem weeds. When someone asked what weed is the biggest money robber, the panel members in unison agreed that it is the weed in your field.

Douglas Beegle, Penn State Extension Agronomist, added to the topic of nutrient combinations for maximum corn yield and the use of manure in corn production. Beegle stated that a grower must get a soil tested to determine what nutrients are needed. The best growing results when a soil test show the nutrients to be in the medium ranges.

He continued by emphasizing that, "Lime is basic to good soil management. If you don't do a good job with lime you can't get the maximum efficiency from your nutrients."

According to Beegle, lime adds calcium and magnesium to the soil, makes the nutrients more available, and reduces the levels of toxic elements. Therefore, he feels that a lime requirement test is a must.

Beegle told the group that while there is no soil test for nitrogen, there have been new nitrogen recommendations formulated. He recommended using one pound of nitrogen per bushel of expected yield. Where a corn grower nitrogen depends upon whether it is to be incorporated or not. Beegle said that if it is to be incorporated immediately, get the cheapest nitrogen according to application per pound on the field. If unincorporated it as in no-till, then Beegle cautioned to watch for urea volatilization.

One other option strongly recommended was the use of starter fertilizer. Starter fertilizer, according to Beegle, can increase yields by as much as 10 bushels plus. However, he warned not to exceed 10 pounds per acre of phosphorus and potash. When considering fertilizer and lime on no-till, Beegle recommends getting the fertility of the ground in good shape before practicing no-till.

Since disease can ruin a crop if conditions are right, Extension Agronomist Joseph McGahen urged growers to have disease problems identified.

Adams County Agent John Swartz, right, presents a purple rosette to Don Hostetter, of Hostetter Farm for winning the county's Five Acres Corn Contest and placing eighth in statewide competition with 176.8 bushels per acre.

He stated, "If you see something on the leaves, find out what it is. This is important because if it was there last summer it is still there this winter." McGahen stated that for a disease to become a problem there must be a pathogen, a host, and the proper environment. He added, that unfortunately the conditions for producing a bumper crop are the same conditions that aid in producing disease, and recommended that the most logical approach to disease control is to use disease resistant hybrids.

He advised however that growers consider the hybrid's ratings for disease control and for yield since some hybrids can tolerate a lot of disease and still produce a good yield.

When considering profit making corn practices, McGahen again raised the question of efficiency. He urged farmers to consider how much it will cost them per acre and what the yield value will be. He stated that somewhere around 80 bushels per acre are required to break even in corn production.

To increase profitability, McGahen stressed that corn hybrid selection, soil fertility needs, plant establishment, weed control, and harvest and storage are all factors which could mean the difference between profit and loss.

Brent Golding, USDA, outline the Federal Crop Insurance Program to the group. Recent changes in the program include the expansion to insure all crops by 1985 and the introduction of the Individual Yield Certification. The yield certification uses the farmers records over the last 10 years to determine his individual farm's producing ability which is the figure used as a guarantee rather than the averages taken from the local crop reporting service and ASCS. Features of the "all risk" program are that the policy can be used as collateral at the bank, the premium is not due till after harvest, it is tax deductable, there are discounts for good yields, the premium is 30 percent government subsidized, and the policy is continuous from year to year.

An up-date on USDA grain programs was presented by Glen Miller, Adams County ASCS. Miller told the group that farmers need to reduce their grain acres to help strengthen the market. He pointed out that there is uncertainty about foreign shipments and feed supplies are currently 13 percent higher than last year's carry over. He stated that this is the largest carry over to the new year since 1960.

Miller encouraged growers to become involved in the 1982 wheat and feed grain voluntary acreage reduction program.

The purpose of the program is to have everyone make a small reduction in hopes of raising the national market thus benefiting everyone. More details on the grain payment program and the grain reserve program can be obtained from local ASCS offices.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

How many of us at one time or another look at our parents and say, "I don't want to be like that, or I don't want to do that?"

We don't want to make their mistakes. What we'll do is our own mistakes.

We try hard to live our own lives but we hear "voices from the past." And so we save strings and rubber bands. We pick 196 pieces of tinsel off of the Christmas tree before throwing it out. We polish our own shoes and save magazines because someday we might need them. We store old clothes because someday we might make a rug. And maybe that day will never come and someone else will have to clean out the attic that we couldn't bear to do.

But time goes by and one day we push our arm through a sleeve and see our "mother's" hand come out. Time makes us look and act more and more like our own mothers did at the same age.

The clincher in all this is when our own children say to us, "I don't want to be like you but I can see signs that I'm becoming that way." No one is all good or all bad and each of us try to live the best life we know how. So we can pray that our children will find some good examples to follow and appreciate us in the future.

Prepare to save nutrients

LANCASTER Suppose your are preparing a well-balanced meal — roast beef, tossed green salad, mashed potatoes, and mixed vegetables. To save time, you peeled and sliced all the salad vegetables in the morning before leaving for work. You removed the outer leaves on the lettuce and soaked the remaining leaves in iced water to retain crispness. You also took the roast out of the freezer in the morning and put it on the counter to thaw.

That evening you peeled and boiled the potatoes. After thawing the frozen mixed vegetables, you boiled and drained them in preparation for serving. The scene is complete. Just as your family was clamoring for dinner, you got everything on the table--everything, that is, except all the important nutrients that were washed, peeled, soaked, thawed, and boiled away as you prepared dinner.

With the whole month of March set aside as National Nutrition Time, you might want to set aside some of your time to consider how you can serve more nutritious meals without even changing your meal planning. Extension nutritionists from Penn State say you can retain vital nutrients, vitamins and minerals by: scrubbing (not peeling) vegetables; slicing vegetables just before serving; not soaking vegetables in water; cooking potatoes in the skin; just scrubbing them prior to boiling; cooking frozen vegetables without first thawing them; steaming vegetables (not just boiling them); saving vegetable water and using it as a stock in soups and gravies.

Include these methods in your meal preparation routine and guarantee your family well-balanced meals from start to finish.

Fruit growers assess cold damage

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Staff Coorespondent

BIGLERVILLE — "With your peach trees you have to understand what grows and what grows well. January 17 and 18 were the days that did it."

This is what Dr. Marshall Ritter, pomolgist, told the 250 Adams County Fruit Growers assembled recently at the Mussleman Cafeteria, Biglerville, concerning the cold weather damage that may have occurred to this year's stonefruit crop.

Temperatures were reported as low as -30F throughout the state with most of the state experiencing temperatures somewhere in the -20F to -15F range. According to the pomologist, in that temperature range the pistols of the stonefruit are damaged. Ritter said that the bud will look green but the cambium layer is dead.

According to Ritter, for the trees which experienced temperatures of -15F to -25F the grower should forget pruning since the most hardy part of the tree will be the ends of the shoots. The normal amount of nitrogen should be applied; as soon as possible apply a 16-16-100 bordeaux mixture. Also, at the time that growth would normally have started, disc the orchard floor so that the trees won't have to compete for nutrients. Finally, do the pruning in late July or early August.

If temperatures were in the -10F to -25F, Ritter again advises not to prune too early. He does recommend spraying to reduce canker. He also states that nitrogen application should be cut in half to encourage enough vegetative growth of the tree but not to encourage excessive shoot growth in case the fruit crop is lost. If necessary the orchard floor should be sprayed with 4 oz. of paraquat to 40 gallons of water per acre if discing is not practical. The initial pruning can then take place with the bulk of the pruning to be done in the late summer.

Growers assess damage

Ritter encouraged growers to take an inventory of the varieties that withstood the cold and those that did not. He explained that growers should not do anything drastic, but instead will have to wait and see just how much damage had occurred. However, in areas where the temperature may have dipped to -30F, he feels the trees have probably been lost.

This wait-and-see attitude was also expressed by growers and fruit processors. Guy Donaldson, Fairfield, stated, "When talking about the stone fruit damage with peaches in particular, I don't think we really know yet and we won't know until we get to the bloom period. I don't think we can tell about the apples either. We get to this point every year and we just have to wait and see."

When asked about the impact on consumer prices, Donaldson replied that it will depend on what the situation is in other parts of the country that produce stone fruits. He feels that growers in this area are fairly deversified in their crops and a stone crop failure, while still a financial burden, will not be a financial disaster.

Charles C. King, fruit procurement director for Mussleman Enterprises, Inc., agreed that it is impossible to project what the fruit crop will be yet. However, he has seen a lot of buds at least on the apple trees. He states that the potential is there for a lot of apples. Mussleman processes apples and sour cherries. Kingston feels the damage to the stone fruits may be spotted, but the peaches have been damaged.

Highlighting the morning business meeting, conducted by Fruitgrowers —resident George Peters, was a special recognition of the Adams County orchards that participated in Farm Show.

Adams County did not place a county exhibit at Farm Show. However, Weiser Orchards had 11 exhibits, Peters Orchards had 59 exhibits, and Brents Orchards had 52 exhibits.

County Extension director Thomas Piper called William Brent forward for a special recognition. At the 1982 Farm Show, Brents Orchards had 15 first places and won Best of Show in two categories. Agent Piper reminded the growers that Farm Show has become a consumer oriented show and that they are responsible for the image that is projected to the public.

Various speakers covered the subject of disease control including nematoids, canker, Budmoths, and mites. Entomologist Larry Hull informed growers that just last week Pydrin, a pyrethroid insecticide, got a federal label for use on apples.

Hull, who has been doing research with pydrin since 1975, stated that, though expensive, the pyrethroids have excellent results and have a long lasting effectiveness. If growers plan to use pydrin in 1982, Hull recommends they be very selective in its use and use it only after August 15 on one block at a time. Growers should closely monitor mites and not use pydrin if mites and S. punctum are present. He states that it is imperative to observe the 21-day preharvest interval for application. He feels that the disadvantages of using pydrin is that it is very toxic and mites can detect pydrin on the leaf and move away from it if the leaf is not totally covered. It stimulates to produce more mites if it is applied too early. Hull cautions that resistance to pydrin can be dveloped if it is overused and he has also found that it increases wooly apple aphid.

An update on marketing was presented by Pa. Apple Marketing Board Representative Larry Wright. Wright informed the group that Adams County produces 7 million bushels of the 9.5 million bushels of apples produced in Pa. in 1980. Wright also presented a slide show on th Marketing Board's promotional campaigns.

Wright informed the growers that they would be receiving information in early March concerning a request to conduct an amendment referendum for Pa. to raise the check-off from 5 cents to 7 cents per hundred weight for fresh apples and from 2 cents to 4 cents per hundred weight for processed apples. He stated that the additional revenues were necessary to support the rising costs in advertising and possibly to hire additional personnel. A public hearing has been set for March 23.To pass the amendment it will take a majority by volume and a majority by vote.

Area Marketing Agent Larry Yager outlined a personal marketing strategy for producers. Stated Yager,"It really makes a pile of difference what you want to do. You need to choose your rut carefully because you're going to be in it for a long time." Yager presented marketing alternatives and urged growers to adopt programs that are suited to their individual situations.

Concluding the afternoon program was an enjoyable and informative program presented by Cindy Reinecker entitled, "Italian Family Life and Farming." Miss Reinecker recently returned as a delegate of the International 4-H Youth Exchange.

Mushrooms graduate from side to main dishes

KENNETT SQUARE — Approximately 100 persons attended a mushroom industry meeting sponsored by the American Mushroom Institute at the Italtian American Citizens League Hall recently.

The main speakers were Barbara Hunter, executive vice president of Dudley-Anderson-Yutzy Public Relations, Inc., New York, N. Y.; Lewe Martin, Esq., AMI's attorney, Rick Robb, AMI's government consultant and Peter Terpeluk, regional administrator of the Small Business Administration.

Barbara Hunter described the $100,000 Fresh Mushroom Merchandising Plan's theme "Mushrooms, the smarter vegetable." New York City, Philadelphia and Wilmington are the markets slated for the promotion efforts which will begin at the end of February and continue until mid-May.

We feel that "Mushrooms, the smarter vegetable," is the single most powerful promotional concept and plan that we (DAY) have developed to date, "said Hunter. "Our proposition is classically simple-to sell more mushrooms than ever before."

Traditionally, consumers have perceived mushrooms as simply a garnish. DAY wants to change this attitude by promoting mushrooms as a side dish vegetable. A full serving would equal three and one half ounces of mushrooms. To encourage side dish vegetable consumption, DAY will enlighten consumers about the low calorie, low sodium, high potassium and other nutritional qualities of mushrooms.

Approximately 400 in-store demonstrations have been incorporated into the promotion program as an incentive to retailers to feature mushrooms in their advertising.

Clyde Domeny, recent head of the merchandising field force of the Idaho Potato Commission, will present the DAY promotion plan to merchandising vice presidents and buyers, showing them how they can have numerous in-store demonstrations at no expense to the chain.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

Budgets - A Nasty Word

Most people look upon budgets as someone else's problem. One reason we dislike budgets so much is they make us take too close of a look at the things we want to do.

Budgets are uncomfortable. Why else is Lucy in "Peanuts" called a "fuss budget"? They are also two restricting and we want to be flexible.

Budgets along with good records could also be a means of saving the farm business. Let's take a look at the two types of budgets a farm family should consider.

Business Budgets

Business budgets could take the form of partial enterprise budgets—what it will take to produce certain farm commodities. They could also be part of a monthly cash flow projection—a budget of the amount of cash needed for a particular month. Most businesses do some of both. They serve several purposes such as: providing management with an idea of production costs per unit; showing management areas where costs could be cut; giving management goals to work towards.

Budget Example A—a 1,200-pound dairy cow requires about 4½ to 5 tons of hay equivalent per year. If she is producing 16,000 pounds of milk, she also will require 3,500 to 5,000 pounds of grain.

A careful budget would indicate the amount of forage and corn you would need. Be sure to include calves and heifers at 3 animals to equal one producing cow.

After budgeting the amount of feed required add 10 to 15 percent for waste and loss. If you use more than this amount, your waste may be excessive or your feed quality especially poor.

Budget Example B - According to previous records you spent $10,000 in April. Your April income was also $10,000 but you have a payment on the proposed advance order tractor due in April of $3,500.

A month-by-month cash flow projection or budget would show whether you would have surplus cash from prior months, cash reserve in savings, or would better forget the deal. Budgeting each month also shows you what bills to expect and what income sources you will have to pay them. Finally it gives an excellent indication of the money you have available for family living.

Family Budgets

There are two ways to set up a family budget. The easiest way is to simply set up two bank accounts. One would be for the business and the other for family use.

If cash flow is tight, force the family to live on the amount allocated to the family account. There is nothing easy about it. I know. We did it for the first 12 years we were married. It was hard and at times frustrating, but it was also the only way we survived.

The second way is to actually allocate the amount of money to specific family expenses such as purchased food, personal insurance, recreation, and education.

The only time my wife cheated on this was to spend too much on presents for the kids. I usually don't know where this extra money came from until I needed new pants and the clothing budget was shot or we ate beans three nights in a row.

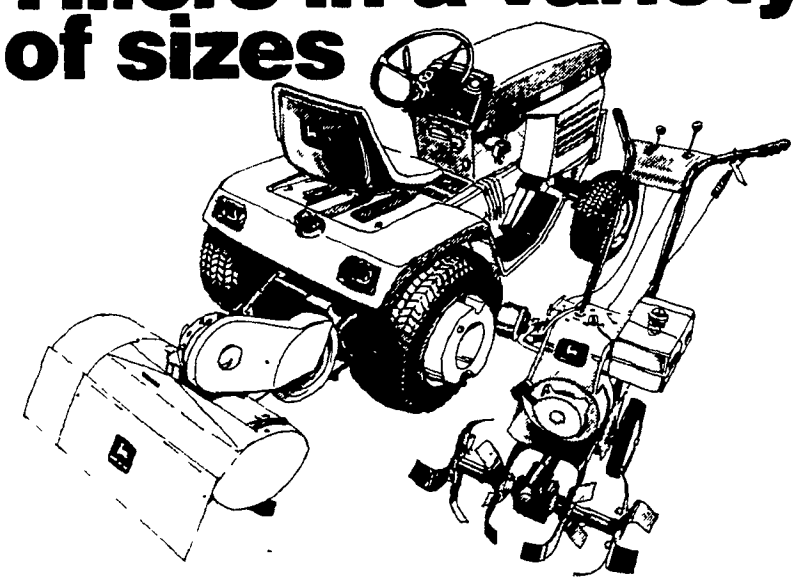
Inflation fighters from John Deere . . .

Tillers in a variety of sizes



With rising cost of food, what better way to fight inflation than to grow your own vegetables. John Deere can provide the equipment to make it easier.

Two models of John Deere Walk-Behind Tillers are available. The 2-hp compact tills a swath 16 inches wide and up to 7½ inches deep. The heavy-duty 6-hp model has a 13- to 24-inch tilling width and a tilling depth of 7 inches. The compact tiller has a lock handle with full-width control bar that lets you operate the machine from behind or from either side. A unique rear-wheel/depth bar assembly swings down for transport, up for tilling. The heavy-duty model has a reverse gear and a pressure activated clutch for added safety.

John Deere Lawn and Garden Tractors pack the muscle you need for even tougher gardening chores. Choose a model, 10 to 19.9 horsepower, then add a capacity-matched tiller that tills 22 to 48 inches wide.

Stop in soon. And let us help you fight inflation with John Deere gardening equipment.

Grain target and loan rates set for PA

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Secretary of Agriculture, John Block, has recently announced the reduced acreage program to reduce grain supplies and strengthen overall grain prices.

Feed gran supplies from last year are up 13 percent with a 1981 record corn crop of 8.2 billion bushels. It is estimated that the October 1 corn carryover will be 2 billion bushels, the largest since 1960. The U.S. wheat supplies are also up from a year ago with a record 1981 crop of 2.8 billion bushels and a record work crop. These record supplies have resulted in weak grain prices.

With the participation of farmers in the reduced acreage program, the Department of Agriculture hopes that 10-15 million acres in 1982 will not be producing crops that had been in production in 1980 and 1981. It is believed that this reduction in acreage will increase grain prices 5-10 percent.

In order to participate, the farm must have a crop base which is the acreage reported for that crop in 1981. Corn, barley, oats, and grain sorghum must be reduced 10 percent and wheat by 15 percent. A reduction of all crops is not a requirement if farmers wish to participate in only one crop. Farmers owning or operating more than one farm will not be required to participate on all farms in order to obtain program benefits on participating farms.

The land taken from production must be devoted to a conservation use and can not be mechanically harvested. This acreage may be grazed except during the six principal growing months.

Participating producers in Pennsylvania will receive the following target price (per bushel) protection: Corn $2.70, Barley $2.60, Oats $1.50, Grain sorghum $2.60. Partipants will be eligible for Commodity Credit Corporation loan rates: Wheat $3.52, Corn $2.77, Barley $2.06. Oats $1.49, Grain sorghum $2.44. A 35 cent per bushel premium for corn will be added to the load rate for farmers entering the 3-year grain reserve program and a 45 cent per bushel premium will be added per bushel of wheat.

The program is voluntary: however, in order to receive program benefits the famrer must be a participant. The deadline to sign an intention to participate is April 16 at the ASCS Office in the Extension Office.

An intention to participate is not a requirement to reduce acreage if a farmer later changes his mind.

DEKALB Farmers Win In Pennsylvania

DEKALB hybrids swept Pennsylvania in the 1981 National Corn Growers Association's Corn Yield Contest. In fact, eight out of the top ten Pennsylvania entries were DEKALB. Farmers who plant DEKALB hybrids haul home more corn. They're winners every harvest.

XL-61
XL-57
XL-71
XL-55a

First Place: Pennsylvania, Class A Non-Irrigated. Michael D. Wright of New Freedom hauled home a big 196.18 bushels per acre with XL-61. DEKALB XL-61 does more than come through with consistent, big yields It starts fast, stands strong and has very good resistance to most foliar and stalk diseases

Second Place: Pennsylvania, Class A Non-Irrigated. Banner Farms in Stewartstown harvested 175.06 bushel per acre with DEKALB XL-57

Third Place: Pennsylvania, Class A Non-Irrigated. Jeffery Mitchell of Honey Brook harvested 172.70 bushels per acre with XL-71. DEKALB XL-71 is Pennsylvania's choice for outstanding yields plus broad-spectrum disease resistance. Goes most anywhere and comes through with top yields.

Fourth Place: Pennsylvania, Class A Non-Irrigated. Lapp Brothers of Cochranville harvested 171.85 bushels per acre with DEKALB XL-55a

Be a winner. Plant DEKALB. See your DEKALB dealer today for the DEKALB hybrids best suited to your farm

Farm Credit elects Jackson

BALTIMORE, MD. — The Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore, the area's leading agricultural lending institutions, have announced the election of William S. Jackson and John W. Stone as chairman and vice-chairman, respectively, of the Banks' Board of Directors.

A native of Pennsylvania, Jackson has served on the Board since 1970. He was recently re-elected to a 3-year term on the Banks' Board by the Banks' affiliated Production Credit Associations (PCAs). Jackson previously served as Board Chairman in 1976-77. A past president of the West Central PCA, Jackson is a Pennsylvania Master Farmer. He operates a 1,030-acre dairy and livestock farm in New Salem, and is a member of the county, state, and national Holstein Associations.

The new vice-president, John W. Stone, has been a member of the Board since 1968. Stone is currently chairman of the Board of Directors for the Central Bank for Cooperatives in Denver, Colorado, and serves on the Board of Directors of Southern States Cooperatives.

The Banks and 26 affiliated Federal Land Bank and Production Credit Associations located across Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, Delaware and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico are lending nearly $3 billion to farmers and farm cooperatives.

Pennsylvania winner of a White-Iseki model 2-35 utility tractor, as shown above, is Robert Berrigan, New Castle, through The Farmers' Store, New Brighton. It is among 52 such tractors which were awarded across the country in the "Harvest The Savings Tractor Give-Away" promotion held by the White Farm Equipment Company from Nov. 1 to Dec. 31, 1981.

INTERNATIONAL AGRICULTURAL EQUIPMENT

Scarlett expands facilities, seed lines

BALTIMORE, MD. — The Wm. G. Scarlett & Co., of Baltimore, recently changed its name to the Scarlett Company. In addition to the name change, the company is consolidating its warehouse and processing plant in one of two large brick buildings it has been occupying on the waterfront since the early 1900's at 729 East Pratt St. The building, processing, packing, and unloading equipment have undergone extensive modernization.

The company began in 1894 as a small business on Spears Wharf in Baltimore Harbor. Founded by William G. Scarlett, the firm continued to prosper under his two sons, William, Jr. and Raymond, the latter starting the bird seed business. William, Jr. served as president until 1979, and, following his death, the business was sold to Moyer & Son, Inc., of Souderton.

The Scarlett Company has adopted a new corporate identity and has also embarked on an aggressive marketing and promotion campaign. The company, which does a large percentage of its business in international commerce, has added new seeds to its total product line. A "new look" is being given to Scarlett Company packaging, trademark, point-of-purchase, promotional materials, catalogues, flyers, advertising trade, and consumer relations, and educational projects.

The Scarlett Company has 88 years experience in the seed business. The product lines include grass (turf) seeds, edible seeds, wild and domestic bird seeds, farm and vegetable seeds, fertilizers, and other turf-related products. Many of their products are marketed under the "Oriole Brand" label.

Company official H. Eugene Hohl points out that Scarlett Company has maintained its high quality and consistent mix throughout the years. He added, "A major company goal is to improve the quality of the seeds we sell wherever possible."

When the decision was made to add corn and soybeans to the farm seed line, the firm went directly to the top U.S. producer, Asgrow Seed Company. Scarlett Company is now the Asgrow distributor in the mid-Atlantic states of Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, and Virginia.

Scarlett Company is also a distributor for International Seeds' best perennial ryegrass, "Regal," and Kentucky bluegrass, "Enmundi."

Two leading vegetable seed lines for wholesale distribution have been added to Scarlett Company's Spring 1982 catalogue. The suppliers are Asgrow and Sun Seeds. It is expected that both lines will help increase wholesalers' volume and profits.

The company has made major capital improvements to their plant equipment. The bulk unloading system, mixing, bagging equipment, and the bulk storage area have been modernized. New automatic scales have been installed and more efficient packing operations have been implemented to improve quality control. A larger capacity diesel truck has been added to serve customers' delivery needs.

In addition to the Baltimore location which supplies seeds to the Maryland, Washington, D.C., northern Virginia, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Delaware areas, Scarlett Company supplies a warehouse in Mansfield, Mass, to serve New England. Three major Florida distributors are located in Miami, St. Petersburg and Jacksonville. Another distributor in Buffalo, handles a triangular territory encompassing Cleveland, Pittsburgh and southeastern Canada. A sales representative based in Atlanta, Georgia serves southern states, excluding Florida.

Walter & Jackson buys Good Lumber

CHRISTIANA — S.H. Good Lumber Co., Hinkletown, has been purchased by Walter & Jackson, Inc., a retail lumber, millwork, and building materials yard, of Christiana.

Robert B. Walter, II, and J. Michael Walter, co-managers of Walter and Jackson, plan to continue operation of the S.H. Good Division to provide the same quality of service as have been provided the past 50 years by Good's. They also plan to add additional services that are now being provided by the Christiana office to home, commercial and agricultural contractors. To accommodate building projects of all sizes, a trained staff of sales personnel also will be available at both locations to help the do-it-yourself person, as well as the contractor.

Estate meetings March 16 & 23

SCHUYLKILL HAVEN — A two-part educational meeting on estate planning will be presented by the Schuylkill County Agricultural Extension Service on March 16 and 23. Both sessions are scheduled to be held in room C-202 of the Penn State Schuylkill Campus from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

On March 16 Attorney Lanny G. Felty, Pine Grove, will discuss wills, their need and content. Attorney Felty will also discuss th Pennsylvania Interstate Law.

Frederick A. Hughes, Penn State Farm Management Extension Specialist, will discuss the tax implications of estate planning and the related provisions of the 1981 Economic Recovery Act.

The second session of March will be devoted to farm ownership transfer including the advantages and disadvantages of various arrangements and the tax aspects involved. Hughes will be the featured speaker.

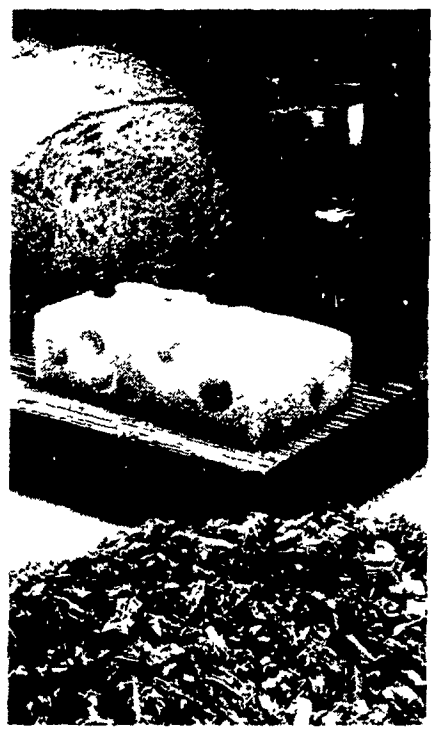
Microbes in Agriculture — New Advances In An Ancient Field



For thousands of years, microbes have been used in agriculture and food production. But it has only been in recent times that the science of microbiology has made significant advances in improving the efficiency of such processes.

Thousands of years ago, man discovered — probably by accident — the natural fermentation processes that produce wine, cheese and other food products. However, it was not until the 17th century that scientific discoveries began to reveal the causes behind these processes. A Dutch scientist working with a primitive microscope was the first to detect the existence of tiny organisms, invisible to the naked eye. He was amazed to find these "microbes" alive and growing in everything from samples of beer to plaque from his own teeth.

It was not until the second half of the 19th century that Louis Pasteur established the relationship between microbes and fermentation. Called upon by a winery to determine why their vats were souring, Pasteur eventually discovered that different types of fermentation are produced by specific kinds of microorganisms. This discovery gave birth to the science of microbiology.

Applying Research To Reality

Since Pasteur's time, the science of microbiology has made great strides. Today, practical applications of that science are making exciting contributions to the improvement of agriculture and food production. For instance, it was through applied research in microbiology that a process was developed to convert cornstarch to fructose, thus opening up a whole new market for corn growers.

Other applications of microbiology — and the newer, related field of microbial genetics — have brought about improvements in age-old natural processes such as the production of yogurt and cheese from milk. Bacterial microbes are also used today to inoculate seeds of legumes such as alfalfa and soybeans. These bacteria promote root nodulation and nitrogen fixation, improving plant growth and quality.

Another application of microbial genetics which has great significance for farmers today is improvement of the natural process of fermentation which preserves forage as silage. Inoculating silage with specific beneficial strains of bacteria can help prevent loss of dry matter and nutrients.

From Seeds to Silage

For many years, Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., has been the leader in development of improved hybrid seeds through genetic research and selective breeding. As a natural extension of that activity, Pioneer has applied microbial genetics to the development of silage inoculant. Sila-bac® brand silage inoculant was the first result of these efforts. Now, further innovations have resulted in an even better formulation — Pioneer® brand 1177 silage inoculant.

1177 contains specially-selected strains of lactic acid-producing bacteria which bring about a rapid, efficient fermentation in the silo. This helps reduce wasteful by-products such as seepage, spoilage and heat. The result is better quality silage, retaining more dry matter and nutrients. 1177 also complements good silage management practices such as cutting at optimum moisture level and plant maturity.

1177 silage inoculant is available from your Pioneer sales representative. Ask him for more information about it.

The Hedlund Basin agitator has all controls at your fingertips. Multiple spool valve assembly with four independent hydraulic functions.

The four inch agitating nozzle is veined to concentrate and control the discharge blast. Nozzle is hydraulically controlled with operating radius of 110° horizontal and 60° vertical using flexible reinforced 6" rib hose.

Big 25 inch impeller operates at 540 R.P.M. Uses 6 large forward sweep blades. Disintegrator bar extends from the impeller breaking up manure solids, offering a greater non-restricted flow into the pump. The Basin agitator pump comes in 24 and 30 ft. ft. lengths.

GEHL®

The #1 Choice Of Our Nations Farmers

Why? They have a 21" Mill with 66" reversible hammers which gives you more cutting action, not as much pounding which makes dust. Due to this fact you can use one size coarser screen than any competitive brand, that should tell you something. Another big plus is the self contained total hydraulics in loading and unloading augers which means no sprockets to trouble you.

Outstanding Features

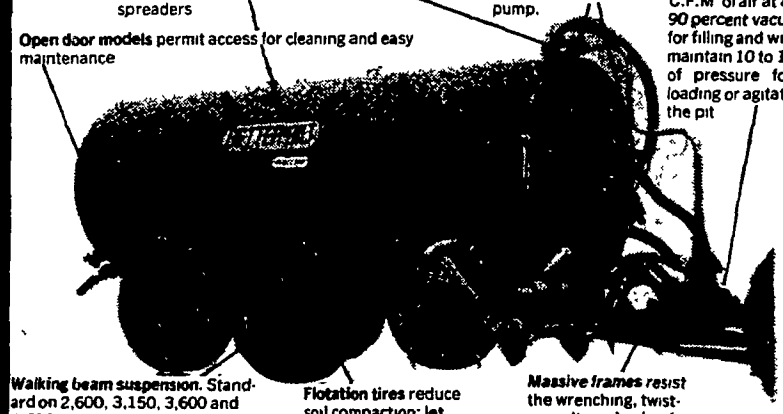
Thick walled for extra strength. No spreader on the market has thicker walls 30 to 70% thicker steel than competitive spreaders

Adjustable relief valve maintains uniform pressure Prevents over-pressurization of tank

Primary Shut-Off valve, plus a secondary shut-off, provide more than adequate protection against liquids entering the pump.

Big 512 cubic inch displacement pressure-vacuum pump is standard equipment. Conservation rated at 135 C.F.M of air at 85 to 90 percent vacuum for filling and will maintain 10 to 15 lbs. of pressure for unloading or agitation in the pit

Open door models permit access for cleaning and easy maintenance



Walking beam suspension. Standard on 2,600, 3,150, 3,600 and 4,600 gallon models (Optional on 1,500 & 2,100 gallon models). Front & rear wheels on each beam follow contour of the ground, provides a smooth level ride.

Flotation tires reduce soil compaction; let you spread on soft ground early in season

Massive frames resist the wrenching, twisting, jolting shocks of hard field usage, year after year.*

Sizes - 800 gal. thru 4600 gal.
Both vacuum & augermatic spreaders for truck mount or trailer type

John Deere design, dependability and dealers make the difference

JOHN DEERE

The Vicon KM-240 cuts and conditions the tallest, tangled, wettest, heaviest, hay. This new mower-conditioner eliminates a pick-up reel, so you can put up more hay - FASTER. With a working width of 7'10", it can mow twice as much area in a day as most competitive models. Most competitors use a pick-up reel, which limits ground speed, adds maintenance problems and allows leaf loss.

The Vicon six-disc cutter bar feeds your crop directly, stem first, into rubber rollers that condition green hay or wet grass. It dries faster and bales easier, saving time and labor.

The KM-240 has no chains, no belts, no sickle bar. If you need only a mower, look at the Vicon CM-165 (4 discs-5½' working width) or the CM-240 6 discs-7'10" working width). Both make clean cuts in heavy grass or tangled crops.

Farmix appealed to a supreme court, and won.

More than 10,000 hogs served on the court. And the trial lasted over four years. The verdict: Farmix swine feed concentrate was proved far superior on all counts...swine performance...carcass leanness... cost of gain.

What clinched the case for Farmix? In brief, research probed far beyond the measure of crude protein levels used by most swine feed manufacturers. Rather, Master Mix Research redefined the requirements of swine for essential amino acids. The objective was to proportion amino acid intake according to the hog's needs for fast efficient daily gains.

Next, Master Mix evaluated the various feedstuffs to identify amino acid availability and the lowest cost combination that would deliver the required amino acid pattern.

The country's highest court—market hogs themselves—bore witness to faster rates of gain. Improved feed conversions. Lower feed cost.

Then all last year, leading swine producers weighed the evidence, and came to a unanimous decision: Farmix really works. It's inexpensive and versatile. And helps build healthier bottom-line profits.

Why not be the final judge. Give Farmix a fair trial on any grounds you choose. See your Master Mix representative.

Highlights of state convention

Holstein breeders trade the barn for a ballroom

BY DONNA TOMELLEO

HARRISBURG — It may have been a far cry from the milking parlor or stall-barn, but Harrisburg's Marriott Inn supplied more than 800 state Holstein breeders with all the comforts of home and then some, during last week's three-day state convention.

The 70th annual affair, hosted by the southeastern Pennsylvania breeders, successfully kicked off, last Thursday in the Marriott's ballroom, with a record-breaking sale, which grossed $227,600 and averaged $5,293 on 43 head. See last week's Lancaster Farming, for complete details on the convention sale.

Throughout the weekend, the convention was punctuated with several workshops on management, milk marketing and Holstein business.

At the same time, 120 Junior Holstein members conducted their annual convention. The Juniors quizzed each other at a mock Dairy Bowl, bought and sold cows for as much as $100,000 per head during a dry run of an auction and elected new officers. The highlight of the Junior convention, coordinated by Paul and Kathy King, Delta, was the calf raffle, which netted almost $3,000.

But for breeders of all ages, the convention was the perfect place to visit with old friends and share ideas with new acquaintances. The entire congregation, however, bid farewell to outgoing president John Cope, Grantham, Cumberland Co., and welcomed new association president Marion Alsdorf, Spartansburg, Crawford Co.

Before stepping down, Cope reviewed the year and reported on the association's financial stability.

"The net worth of your association has steadily increased to a current figure of nearly one half million dollars," he said.

"The constant activity of consignment, dispersal, domestic and export sales have generated sufficient cash flow to eliminate very substantially the need for borrowed monies to conduct business."

Cope lauded the PHA seven-member staff and 6,122 members, calling them the "life blood of this and every organization."

"I perceive that the spirited level of personal involvement by the membership is a key measurement of the health of our association," he noted.

Two long-time Holstein members were honored for their efforts and were inducted into the PHA Hall of Fame.

E.W. Newlin of Grantville, and Fred Naugle of Carlisle, were lauded for their outstanding contributions in the association.

Newlin has served as the association's past president, vice president and director. He also promoted the sales of Pennsylvania Holsteins throughout the country and served as president of the Dauphin County DHIA.

Naugle earned the nickname, "Pedigree Man," for his efforts in managing sales. In one year alone, Naugle managed more than 70 sales. He has served as delegate to the National Holstein Convention for many years and is a lifetime Dairy Shrine member.

(Turn to Page D4)

Former PHA president John Cope and wife Helen, left, congratulate Edward and Harriet Newlin during Newlin's induction into the PHA Hall of Fame. Newlin has held several offices in the association and actively promoted the sale of Pennsylvania Holsteins throughout the country.

Fred Nagle, right, of Carlisle is inducted into the PHA Hall of Fame by former president John Cope. Naugle began farming in 1941, has been a delegate to the National Convention for many years and is a lifetime Dairy Shrine member.

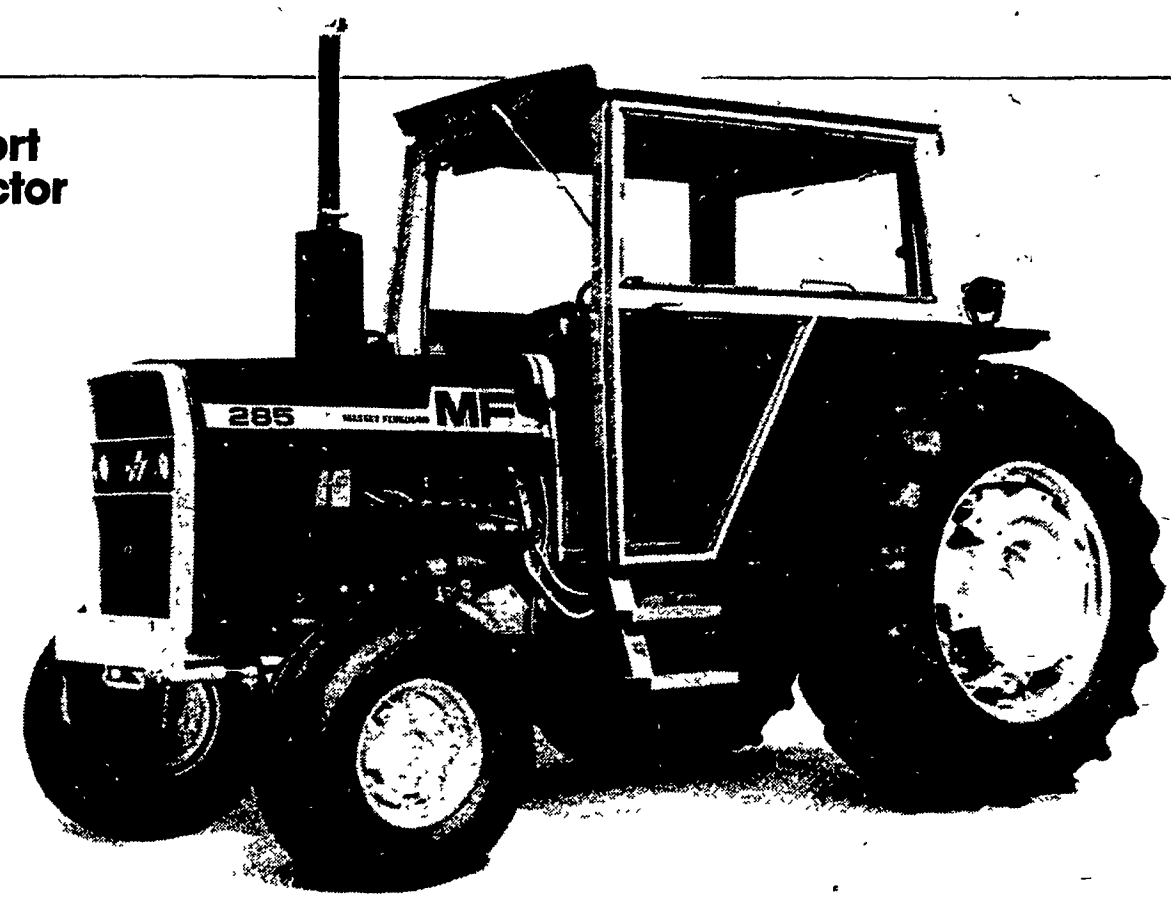
MF 285 Cab Tractor

Year-round operator comfort on an all-around 81 hp tractor



The MF 285 Cab Tractor provides the kind of operator comfort and convenience usually found only on larger tractors.

For example, the standard heater keeps the spacious cab comfortable even on the coldest days. And the optional air conditioner is the perfect answer to heat and humidity.

The cab door is extra-wide for easy entry and exit. Glass area has been maximized to virtually eliminate blind spots, making it easy to see rows or hitch up.

Special shock-absorbing features designed into the seat provide a smooth ride in the roughest going. The seat is fabric covered for added comfort and the arm rests conveniently fold out of the way.

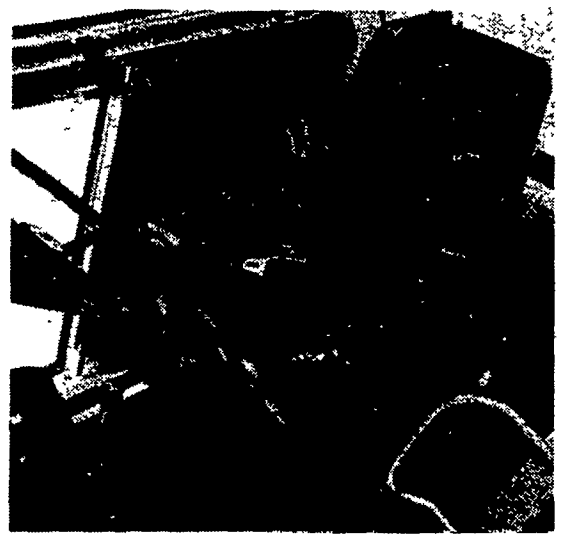
All controls and instruments have been positioned to reduce stress and strain. Hydrostatic power steering and a tilt/telescoping steering wheel are standard.

Isolation mounting and sound absorbing material in the walls and floor of the cab hold noise and vibration to a minimum.

Other standard convenience features include both hand and foot throttle, maintenance-free batteries and a two-speed electric windshield wiper.

Fuel-Efficient Perkins Power

Power in the MF 285 Cab Tractor is provided by a fuel-stingy 318 cu. in. Perkins diesel engine rated at 81* PTO horsepower.



Spacious cab and conveniently located controls make for easy entry and exit. Tilt and telescoping steering wheel adds to operator comfort. Seat is fabric covered and adjusts to height and weight. Heater is standard, air conditioner optional.

Choose an 8-speed manual or 12-speed Multi-Power transmission with shift on-the-go convenience for the travel speeds you need.

The rugged Category II convertible to Category III 3-point linkage has a lift capacity of 4440 lbs. (2014 kg) to handle heavy implements with ease.

A standard 2-spool auxiliary valve provides plenty of remote hydraulic capacity.

If you're in the market for a tractor in this horsepower range, and need the year-round comfort only a factory-installed cab can provide, then the MF 285 Cab Tractor is just what you're looking for.

PHA convention highlights

The PHA also honored several younger members before the convention ended.

Four Juniors gained recognition as Distinguished Junior Members in the senior and junior division.

In the senior division, Daniel Albright, 17, and Suzanne Green, 19, shared the spotlight as DJMs.

HARRISBURG — Nearly five hundred dairy farmers and guests traded evening chores at cow barns and milking machines for candlelight, prime rib and baked Alaska, as they enjoyed the Pennsylvania Holstein Association's annual convention last Friday.

But the buzz of conversation around the tables in the elegant ballroom of the Harrisburg Marriott Inn nevertheless focused on farm economic woes, crop talk, and the inevitable discussions of the breeding and production of the registered black and white cow.

In a surprise presentation, PHA executive secretary, William C. Nichol, received fundraising plaudits from Penn State AG College dean, Samuel Smith.

Nichol and the Holstein Association spearheaded the Penn State Ag Arena dairy and livestock sales held in December at the Farm Show building, raising over $128,000 toward the construction of an agriculture exhibit arena at the university.

The "trophy" was one especially fitting to the interest of Bill Nichol, a highly enthusiastic supporter of Penn State's Nittany Lions athletic teams. He was presented with a beautifully crafted smooth gray-colored marble statue of the symbolic Nittany Lion.

According to dean Smith, some 1600 group and individual donations have helped swell the Ag Arena funding coffers to near the halfway mark of the $400,000 goal.

Welcoming remarks came from special guest Penrose Hallowell, state Secretary of Agriculture and a Holstein breeder and dairyman in his home Bucks County. He praised the working relationship between the state ag department and the university as a plus for the Pennsylvania farm community.

Hallowell also acknowledged that state Farm Show building facilities are in need of expansion to meet space demand, possible through the addition of another building. He indicated that increases in show premiums are also being considered.

What You Should Know About Swine Health

by Glenn Shirk
Lancaster Extension Agent

Editor's Note. This is the final article in a series on Swine Health. Those people on the Pseudorabies Task Force who contributed articles for this series are. Dr. Lawrence Hutchinson, Penn State Extension veterinarian; Matthew J. Parsons, Penn State Extension swine specialist; Pa's Bureau of Animal Industry, Dr. Robert E. Graybill, a local practitioner; Dr. Henry W. Kulp, Sectional veterinarian of the Animal Plant Health Inspection Service; John Henkel, local pork producer, and Ed Prosser, Lancaster Stock Yards.

This final article will focus on pseudorabies. Last month Lancaster County had 4 new infections and 2 quarantines lifted, leaving 25 herds in the County currently under quarantine, compared to 24 at the beginning of the winter. Of all the quarantines revoked, only one has become reinfected so far.

Many of the new infections appear to be "purchased" or from the placement of local infected stock into feed lots. This would indicate that hog producers must continue to be very concerned about where and from whom feeder pigs are purchased. It also indicates that farmers must be alert to keep infection from being carried in by the movement of hogs and people. Be extremely sanitary.

Here are some good suggestions from Penn State swine specialist Matthew J. Parsons [illegible] producer program to prevent pseudorabies in your herd. [illegible]

Producer program to prevent pseudorabies in your herd

To decrease the chance of your herd contracting pseudorabies, you should follow a few simple steps.

First of all, buy herd additions from Qualified Pseudorabies Free herds or have the animals tested prior to purchase. For feeder pigs of unknown status, you should test five to fifteen percent of the pigs to see if they are free of pseudorabies. New breeding stock should be isolated for thirty days and retested after isolation.

Unauthorized people should not be allowed into swine units. Posting signs and locking doors may be required to kep unauthorized people out. Authorized persons should use disinfectants and foot baths, disposable clothing or shower into a unit. Any person visiting your operation should not find this to be too large of an inconvenience if that person is concerned with disease control.

When marketing hogs it is best to consider that all stockyards, buying stations, packing plants and trucks have the pseudorabies virus present. Footwear and clothing worn at the markets should not be worn in the hog barn without first cleaning and disinfecting.

Pigs should not be allowed to run on and off of trucks while being sorted. A pig that goes onto a truck and returns to the barn may carry the pseudorabies virus into your facility. Feeder pigs and breeding stock should be hauled in clean, disinfected trucks, only.

Equipment that is shared by producers should be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected between use at each farm. Manure and debris can harbor the virus, so pseudorabies may be carried into an operation on the equipment. This is extremely critical for equipment that hogs come in direct contact with.

Stray animals may carry the virus so it is important that they be controlled. Cats, dogs, rodents, and wildlife should be prevented from entering hog facilities. Furthermore, rodent and wildlife populations should be controlled to limit their effect in spreading diseases.

Dead animals should be disposed of promptly. They may be buried under at least one foot of dirt,, incinerated or sealed in plastic [illegible] to pick up. Rendering trucks should not enter your farm, since often they leak and may leave some disease problem behind.

Finally if a questionable health problem exists, call your veterinarian to get help. Simply burying your head in the sand will not help to control pseudorabies.Control will require a cooperative effort of all people involved in the swine industry including the producer and the agri-businessmen who work with swine producers.

Featured speaker for the evening program was Henry Shriver, knows as "Ohio's farm philosopher," who intespersed his talk on farming and freedoms with wit and wisdom in the form of rhyming verse.

Greeting the audience as "fellow box stallers," Shriever related his dairying background. He's a graduate of Ohio State University and the father of eleven children.

Since his first speech in 1961, Shriver has made over 2,000 such appearances throughout the country, and his program on cooperatives has been videotaped for use by the State Department in educational presentations.

Special musical entertainment for the evening came from the red-shirted, black jumpsuit-garbed Milton Hershey Glee Club, under the direction of Virgil Alexandria.

The younthful singers are all in the 15 to 18 age group, and from the Milton Hershey School. They've won numerous honors and have appeared by special invitation to former presidents and governors.

Travelling through Pennsylvania and surrounding states, the Glee Club presents some 50 concerts annually, with a rousing program of musical numbers ranging from humerous to patriotic to spiritual in nature.

Dairy Pipeline

By Glenn A. Shirk
Extension Dairy Agent

What can over feed costs tell you?

Do you know how much your feeds are really costing you? You should, because feed is your largest item of cost in producing milk.

How close are your DHIA feed costs to your actual feed costs? Remember, your DHIA figures do not reflect feed losses, the cost of feeding heifers, nor the high cost of that expensive new harvesting equipment, feed storage and feeding equipment, you have recently purchased, or are thinking about purchasing.

How much profit is that cow that returns $800 over feed costs really making for you? Maybe none! It could be that a cow returning $1,200 over feed costs is only half as profitable as one returning $1,600.

These are important questions for you to consider as you use your DHIA reports to evaluate individual cows in your herd, and to evaluate the overall efficiency of your dairy operation.

Now, while you are working on your farm tax returns, is a good time to find answers to these questions, and it really isn't too hard to do. Using your Form 1040F divide your farm expenses into two general columns: those that are affected by the number of cows you have on the farm and those that would occur regardless of whether you had cows or not. The latter expenses, I'll refer to as overhead costs.

Now, divide those cow-related costs into two additional columns: feed-related and non-feed costs. The feed-related costs would include purchased feeds plus all those other costs associated with the growing, harvesting, storing and feeding of crops.

To illustrate this, I've taken the 1980 Pennsylvania Dairy Farm Business Analysis Summary figures for the 50-59 cow herds and allocated them—right or wrong—to one of three columns as shown below. Then, I compared them to our 1980 DHIA figures for Lancaster County. Remember, these are 1980 figures; they do not reflect today's costs and returns.

The average cow on test in Lancaster County in 1980 returned $1,155 over feed costs. How much of that was true profit? We'll see in a minute.

Her DHIA feed costs were $742; that is $293 less than the figure ($1,035) in line 33, above, which includes the cost of feeding heifers. Other costs which she has to carry are non-feed cow-related costs ($436) and overhead costs ($241). When combined, these unaccounted for expenses total $970 per cow! Subtract this from her $1,155 return over feed cost, and we discover that she only made you $185 profit per year!

In this example, a cow had to return $970 over feed costs just to break-even. What is the break-even figure for your farm? Plug in the costs, and savings, of any changes you anticipate in your cropping program, machinery purchases, construction of feed storage or housing facilities, or changes in the size of your heifer or cow herd to see how these changes would affect your break-even level.

Does this mean that your DHIA figures are worthless? On the contrary! What it does mean is that you may want to change how you interpret your figures.

Correct your return over feed cost figures by the break-even figure, which you have calculated from your tax return for your farm. Then, you can compare the true profitability of one cow with another.

We discovered, in our example, that the $1,155 return-over-feed-cost cow only made $185 profit. That means a $1,340 "return" cow would be twice as profitable ($1,155 + $185 = $1,340), but you probably would not have concluded that from your first glance at your return over feed cost figures.

So, don't let Uncle Sam be the only one who benefits from all the time you spend on your tax return; you may as well benefit, too. Use it in conjunction with your DHIA reports as a guideline for more profitable culling and farm management decisions.

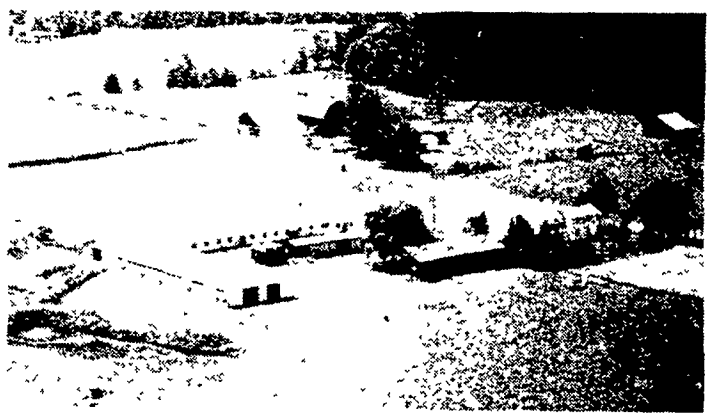
"HERD AVERAGE CONTINUES TO IMPROVE"

Mr. & Mrs. Donald Heller and sons live on a large dairy farm in Canton, Pa. The Heller's started using the Nu-Pulse milking system in September 1981. Since then they have noticed these significant improvements among their herd of 58 cows.

- Cost of the Nu-Pulse system was lower than quotes given on other systems.
- Herd average was 15,587 milk and 600F. Now it is 16,042 milk and 609F.
- SCC has been a steady decrease.
- Teats are softer and more natural looking
- Udders have "milked out" look
- Fall-off is not a problem



The Heller's say, "We are pleased with the simplicity of the milkers and the one-hose system."

The Hellers Nu-Pulse milking system was installed by Steiner's Ref.

AMERICAS has a complete milking system from buckets to full-automated parlors.

Cattle numbers show moderate buildup

UNIVERSITY PARK- The Jan. 1, 1982, inventory of cattle has been released by the USDA. Cattle and calves totaled 115.7 million head, up 1.2 percent from 114.3 million on Jan. 1, 1981. The increase was smaller than generally expected and smaller, too, than the 2.8 percent increase that occurred in 1980.

The lower rate of increase in cow herds and beef production can be attributed to the unprofitable position of the cattle industry, according to a Penn State report.

During the last buildup in cattle numbers, the inventory reached 131.8 million on Jan. 1, 1975. There followed a fast liquidation to 110.9 million on Jan. 1, 1979. Numbers were held essentially stable during 1979, with a relatively rapid increase taking place in 1980.

Cattle prices were high in 1979, and it appeared that another period of rapid buildup in cattle numbers had started in 1980. Further, it seemed that the withholding of breeding stock would reduce slaughter, forcing prices still higher and generating enthusiasm for more buildup until excess production forced a crash and also herd liquidation. However, this kind of cyclical pattern may have been avoided.

Consumer resistance to high beef prices in mid-1979 caused a major reduction in cattle prices. The short feed crops in 1980 that resulted in high grain prices during 1980-81 kept cattle-feeding unprofitable. In addition, supplies of pork and poultry increased rapidly during 1980 and 1981, further depressing prices for both fed and feeder cattle. Since a combination of these factors appears to be moderating herd expansion, the "boom and bust" syndrome may be avoided.

Beef cow members, the best indicator of underlying herd size, reached a peak of 45.5 million head on Jan. 1, 1975, and were decreased to 37.1 million by Jan. 1, 1979. On Jan. 1, 1980, the number was also 37.1 million. This was increased by 1.6 million on Jan. 1, 1981, to 38.7 million. At 39.4 million on Jan. 1, 1982, the rate of increase was cut in half.

In Pennsylvania dairy cow numbers increased by 2 percent last year and beef cows increased 24 percent, according to H. Louis Moore, Penn State Extension agricultural economist.

The calf crop reached a high of 50.7 million in 1974 and a low of 42.6 million in 1979. Compared with these figures, the calf crop in 1980 was 45.0 million, and 44.7 million in 1981. A normal calving rate in 1982 will produce about 45.4 million head. The underlying numbers from which beef will be produced during 1982 and 1983 are about stable at a level 10 percent below the peak of the mid-seventies.

The supply of animals for slaughter during 1982 is largely determined by the number of heifers not kept for herd replacement, by steers 500 pounds and over, and all steers and heifers under 500 pounds. These categories totaled 51.6 million on Jan. 1, 1982, compared with 51.7 million a year ago. If there is no change in the rate of herd expansion in 1982, cattle slaughter and beef production will be about equal to that of 1981.

Demand for beef should increase during 1982. Hog producers indicate intentions to cut back on production, as do turkey producers, and broiler producers will probably moderate their rate of production increase. Real consumer incomes may or may not increase, but with continued inflation their current dollar income will rise.

The combination of stable beef production, less competition from other meats, rising consumer incomes, and an expanding population should result in rising cattle prices during 1982.

Total Density Control (TDC) lets you vary bale density to match moisture conditions

Gehl large round balers put you in total control of bale density and size. You can bale any hay crop, from legumes to grass hay. And most crop residues. Even in tough conditions. And you can actually control the diameter and weight of your bales.

Gehl's unique, patented Total Density Control concept makes it all possible.

When your hay crop is at the right moisture content, you'll roll 'em tight all the way. Just one big, heavy bale.

But when conditions are tougher, you adjust. Increase the core size. Change the wrap density. Or both.

Power-Feed Throat for fast positive bale starts

Our Power-Feed Throat with aggressive hay pickup gives you quick bale starts and allows you to travel at fast ground speeds. This positive feed flow is a real advantage in tough baling conditions.

The bottom line: increased bale quality...more bales per hour.

Gehl round balers are available in two sizes. They're ideal for tight, heavy bales. Or low density bales. And everything in between.

We put good ideas to work

Texas producer heads American Simmental Assn.

Bozeman, Mt. — John B. Collier IV, of Stephenville, Texas, has assumed the presidency of the American Simmental Association.

Collier, a member of the ASA Board of Trustees since 1977, was elected during the Association's 14th Annual Meeting and Convention, held January 28-30 at Walt Disney World, near Orlando, Florida. He succeeds Bob Dickinson, Gorham, Kansas in the President's Chair.

In other ASA election results announced during the convention, Jim Nickeson of Veblen, South Dakota was named vice president and president elect; Dick Tetherow of Valentine, Nebraska assumed the treasurer's post; Emmet Butcher of Lewistown, Montana and Roy Meek of Draper, Virginia were elected to serve on the 5-member executive committee along with the three elected officers.

More than 500 Simmental breeders and their families were on hand for the Florida-based convention that was highlighted by the speaking appearance of noted news commentator Paul Harvey.

"Enthusiasm about the future of Simmental was very apparent," said ASA Executive Vice-President Earl B. Peterson. "As the breed grows in numbers and members, it becomes more and more apparent that Simmental have a vital role to play in the beef herd of America."

Three long-time figures in the development of Simmental cattle were honored by the World Simmental Federation. Receiving the first "Golden Book" awards in "recognition of contributions and service" were: Dr. Horst Leipold, Kansas State University animal scientist; Dr. Harry Fergeson, 4-term ASA trustee from Anaconda, Montana; and two-term ASA President Jerry Moore of Canton, Ohio.

Six new trustees were sworn in including: John Teagarden, LaCygne, Kansas; Edmund Tom, Campbellton, Texas; Hugh Karsteter, Cushing Oklahoma; James Walthall, Windsor, Missouri: Jon Callender, Charlotte, Michigan; and Enos Groves, Fortville, Indiana. The American Simmental Association is governed by a 16-member board of trustees, four from each of four geographical areas.

The fifteenth Annual ASA Convention and Annual Meeting has been scheduled for February 2-5, 1983 at Forth Worth, Texas. The Hyatt Regency Hotel will serve as convention headquarters.

Grange polls farm leaders

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Some say shaky, some say marginal, some say wait and see, some say terrible.

Those were the answers from six state Grange officials from different parts of the country when asked, "What is the state of the farm economy?" The farm leaders were also asked, "What would you like to do about it?"

Charles Wismer, Master, Pennsylvania State Grange, called the farm economy very shaky. He said because we are now overproducing, we need to either cut back in production or develop new markets. He also said the Administration's new farm program may be on the right track but doesn't go nearly far enough in providing incentives for farmers to participate.

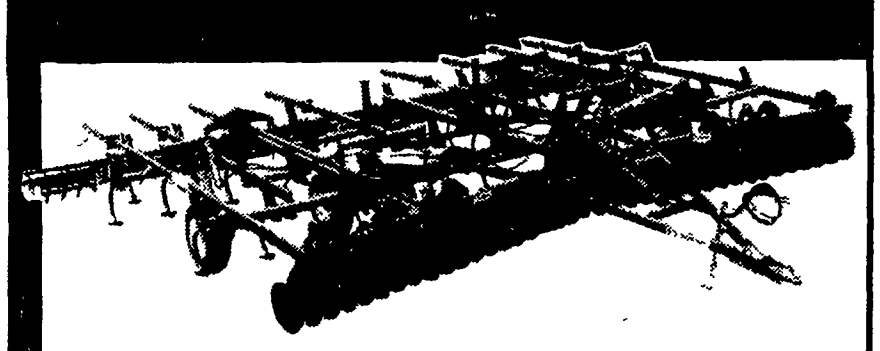
From the West, Jack Silvers, Master of the Washington State Grange, said serious problems are developing, but the mood of his farmers is to give Reaganomics a chance to work. Another Western Master, Mrs. Jeanne Davies, Colorado, said farmers are now at the point where they must decide whether to sell part of their land to have operating capital. She said farmers need a means to get loans through an agriculture authority and more cooperation is needed between farmers and marketing organizations.

New England farm leader, James Shores, Master, Maine State Grange, said his farmers are not ready to go under, but the situation is marginal. Hardest hit are the broiler and lumber industries. He said ways are needed to bring down rail transportation costs into New England because current costs add tremendously to the cost of feed grains and fuel.

Ed Moody, Master of the Kansas State Grange, said farmers are borrowed up to the hilt and are worried about the future. He is encouraged by recent meetings held by a coalition of Kansas farm groups with David Stockman, Director, OMB and Secretary of Agriculture, John Block.He feels Sec. Block should and will use his discretionary authority more often.

Southestern farmers are having a terrible time, reports Lloyd Massey, Master, North Carolina State Grange. Massey said farmers, either individually or through cooperatives should have better direct access to foreign markets. He also feels that finding a way to lower interest rates is the key to ecomonic recovery for agriculture.

ONE PASS TILLAGE.



Bush Hog® Soil Conservur

Here's the ultimate spring tillage tool. The new Bush Hog® Soil Conservur cuts trash, levels fields, incorporates chemicals and firms seedbeds in one time, fuel and money saving pass.

Eighteen inch front discs with unique two-way disc scrapers and 7½" spacing chop crop residue. Four ranks of precise-tripping steel cultivator shanks may be spaced at 6" for maximum trash flow or 9" for best chemical incorporation. Five ranks of spike mulcher teeth finish incorporation and level ridges for a firm, pulverized seedbed. The 40" space between disc gangs and cultivator teeth is ample room for a clean uninhibited chemical spray pattern. No dirt shields are needed.

Wing models fold 180° for a 13'6" transport width and less than 8' height. Models range from 12'9" to 24'9" wide and match tractors of 75 to 250 HP.

Save time, fuel and money with the Bush Hog Soil Conservur — the tillage tool for today's economy.

Chop stalks and chisel in one pass with the new Soil Hog™

Save time and soil with the new Bush Hog® Soil Hog™ trail-type coulter chisel that chops stalks and chisels in the same pass. Even the thickest stalks won't build up on chisel shanks because front coulter blades chop and slice through stalks, roots and compacted soil. Rear chisel shovels dig in to break up root systems and mix soil and residue to protect soil from wind and water erosion.

The Soil Hog features 32" chisel shanks, coulter scrapers, heavy-duty welded frame, adjustable height and running depth. Available in 8'9", 11'3" and 13'9" widths for 160 to 185 HP.

Bedell petitions Reagan to meet with farmers

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Northern Iowa Congressman Berkley Bedell last Wednesday announced he has requested President Ronald Reagan meet with a group of farmers and business people as a means of learning what Bedell termed the "critical state of our rural economy."

"It is my hope that you will allow time in your schedule to meet with a group of rural constituents who currently find their livelihood threatened as never before," said Bedell in a letter to the President.

Bedell's letter folows a Feb. 9 rejection by the White House to set up a meeting between the President and 42 rural members of Congress at a "mutually convenient time." The Bedell letter suggested that the President meet with one farmer or business person from each of the congressional districts represented by the 42 Congressmen seeking to meet with Mr. Reagan.

"The problems facing our rural economy are serious and widespread," said the Bedell letter. "When the farmer has little income, among the first to feel the tightening in the rural economy are the small businesses which serve the farmers."

"There are an increasing number of empty store fronts and numerous implement and automobile dealerships, feed stores and fertilizer distributors, and other small businesses that are being severely pinched by a sharp reduction in farmer spending," continued the Bedell letter.

Bedell said he was also concerned by the President's refusal to meet with rural leaders during Reagan's recent trip to the Midwest, especially since the USDA's own unofficial estimates project farm income to be below last year's level by more than 30 percent.

"I am deeply troubled by the feeling that the President and his agriculture advisors in Washington don't really understand the serious trouble our farmers are facing," said Bedell. "This year is expected to be the third year in a row that farm income has fallen to the levels of the 1930s."

"The likelihood of continued stagnant export demand, increased farm production low commodity prices and persistently high interest rates provides little hope for relief in the foreseeable future," said Bedell.

"I am convinced that it is essential for the President and officials to meet with the farmers and rural business people in order for them to find out how severe the economic conditions are in our rural areas," Bedell said. "It has always been my policy to try to bring decision makers in Washington together with those individuals affected by government actions."

Entomologist predicts high numbers of corn borers

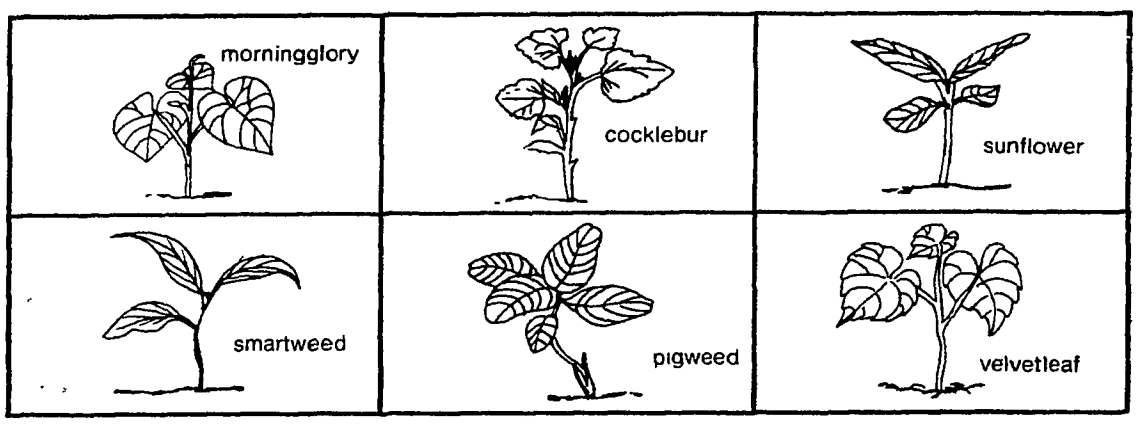
NEWARK, Del. — Entomologists at the University of Delaware are predicting higher populations of first brood European corn borers than seen in the past three seasons.

Extension pest management specialist Mark Grausten says it now appears likely, based on high numbers of overwintering larvae, that economic infestations will occur in early planted corn.

However, natural enemies of the corn borer and/or extreme temperature fluctuations may result in reduced survival of overwintering larvae. On the other hand, long periods of cold temperatures and snow cover do not greatly reduce survival.

County extension agents are now mailing out early-season predictions and control recommendations for first and second brood European corn borers, black cutworms, armyworms, aphids, grass sawflies, and Mexican bean beetles. Growers who haven't received this information by mid-March should call the county extension office in Newark, Dover, or Georgetown and ask to be placed on the integrated pest management mailing list.

Pick the weeds
in your corn you'd like to get rid of...



Then pick Banvel® herbicide... the Big Plus...to do the job.

Pre-emergence: Banvel tank-mixed with *Lasso® to get broadleaf weeds along with grasses...ready and waiting when later weeds germinate.

Early layby (in corn up to five inches high): use Banvel at a one pint rate. Stop weeds before they've had a chance to develop. This Banvel overlay controls cocklebur, sunflower, annual morningglory, other troublemakers.

Post-emergence (corn up to 36 inches): Banvel herbicide controls the real problems—like smartweed, velvetleaf, bindweed, and seedling Canada thistle.

Before buying a less adaptable herbicide that may be short on performance, check out the Big Plus of Banvel...from Velsicol.

*Lasso® is a registered trademark of Monsanto Company The Lasso + Banvel tank mix is cleared for use in Colorado Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Utah and Wisconsin

Roaming dogs plague deer

HARRISBURG — Free-roaming dogs are taking a toll on Pennsylvania's deer herd this year, according to district game protectors.

While it's still too early to compile statistics, officers say the total number of deer lost to canines will be considerably higher than usual. In a "normal" Pennsylvania winter, about 600 whitetails are lost to dogs.

Most dogs involved are household pets. Not all of the canines are big. Many of the culprits are curs, terriers and other breeds smaller than beagles.

While recent rains helped cut snow and ice in some parts of the state, depths of up to two feet are reported in the mountains. Just about everywhere, the snow is capped with a hard crust or ice.

Legs are bruised or broken when sharp deer hooves cut through the crust. It's difficult for a whitetail to even walk through crusted snow.

Dogs, generally lighter in weight with relatively large, padded feet, are able to run with little difficulty, but deer just can't get away from dogs in such circumstances, and are easily pulled down.

At peak condition, a deer can run faster than a dog for a short distance, but canines have more stamina and can run down any deer. In winter, with natural food supplies in short supply, when the whitetail is weak, it is simply no match for any dog.

Dog owners are warned that they will be prosecuted by wildlife conservation officers if their pets chase deer.

Sire summary breakdown

Proven profiles provide sound advice

BY DONNA TOMMELLEO

You've just bought your first dairy heifer which brings you one step closer to fulfilling your dream of breeding a top purebred herd.

You can remember sitting around listening to the older breeders talk about bulls and cows like they were old friends. You never forgot the thrill of your first sale when the falling gavel sharply signaled the purchase of an outstanding animal. While dozens of admirers crowded around the beast to offer congratulations to the breeder and owner, you decided that one day your animals will command no less respect.

That is why you want to make the best decision you can when breeding that heifer. If it's just a matter of getting her bred, the neighbor's bull, that's a son of a son of "what's his name," could be persuaded to visit for a day. But you're serious about building for the future and you get out the USDA sire summary and start looking for the bull that will help get your breeding program off the ground.

Welcome to the computer age! It seems that there's more data on that summary sheet than you care to digest. Old "what's his name's" grandson is looking better all the time. But with a little help from the Extension or bull stud personnel, you'll soon be reading the summaries like the Sunday paper.

Potential sires enter young sire sampling programs by the thousands each year. However, only 10 percent meet the requirements to enter a proven line up.

Reading from left to right, the first seven-place digit is the bull's registration number, followed by his name. A code for the bull stud and the date of the summary are the next two figures. You haven't looked at any of the bull's data yet and you're already one-third of the way through the summary.

The next figure is the number of herds in which the bull has daughters. According to Harry Roth, sire analyist for Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, the greater number of herds in which a bull has daughters, the more reliable his repeatability becomes, that is the more likely he is to repeat his performance.

"You have the variation of all of the herds' influences on that bulls summary," Roth explained.

Roth noted that bulls proven in a few herds, will often times end up with a better proof on both milk and type.

"But because of his more controlled status of sampling and controlled environment as to the selection of daughters that would actually end up in the proof, that proof may not be as accurate, later on, when he's used over a very wide range of daughters," said Roth.

The next summary figure is effective daughters per herd, which is becoming an increasingly important number, explained ABC progeny analyst Dale Olver.

"It's basically a number that indicates how well distributed or how concentrated daughters are in each individual herd," said Olver.

He explained that a bull proven through a stud's young sire sampling program usually comes through with an effective daughter figure of 1 or 2. But a breeder proven or syndicate bull will have a much higher number.

An effective daughter figure higher than 2 combined with a low repeatability indicates the bull is not very widespread and could be subject to herd influences, Olver said.

The effective daughter figure is followed by total number of daughters on which the summary is based.

The next figure, records per daughter, will tell the prospective breeder the average number of lactations on the bull's daughters. Harry Roth noted two reasons why this figure would be low for a proven bull.

"A bull can have a tremendous number of daughters in a tremendous number of herds and seemingly be around a while. And yet he may really not be around long enough that those daughters will have time to become older," he explained.

"There also could be some functional reason why the daughters did not stay around all that long," said Roth.

For average lactation record, the ABC experts explained that for example, 18,000 pounds of milk credited to a bull, has been adjusted for numerous influences. Some of the adjustments include age, season of freshening, times milked a day to name a few factors.

Roth explained that a new bull's first proof is often based on projected records of his daughters.

"We sometimes get summaries where the average days of actual production on the daughters might be less than a hundred, and those records are projected to three hundred and five."

Sire summary breakdown

The projected records, a recent change in summaries, has allowed bulls to be summarized at least six months earlier than they had been, said Roth.

"The predictions are pretty accurate," Roth said. "Generally, it will forecast bulls on the low side than on the high side."

In the next two figures, the summary will also indicate the percentage of daughters culled in their first lactation and the percentage of first calf heifers that haven't finished a record.

A bull's family or pedigree influence is listed in parentheses, Olver pointed out.

"Bulls are placed in various pedigree categories depending on their sires and maternal grandsire," said Olver.

"As a bull has few daughters, the pedigree influence is generally larger. As he gets higher in repeatability, the pedigree influence gets down to nothing," he noted.

A pedigree influence reaches its maximum at about 50 percent repeatablility, a measure of the bull's actual performance, not his family's.

Finally, the predicted differences for milk, fat, test and dollars, ranks a bull with other summarized sires.

Roth expressed concern that breeders may have a false notion that the highest PD bull is automatically going to sire more milk per cow.

In all probability, a breeder may find that a group of animals sired by a high PD bull will milk more than a group sired by a lower PD sire, explained Roth.

However, Roth pointed out that within the group sired by a lower PD bull, a breeder may have a cow that, in any given lactation, will produce more than the highest producing daughter of the high PD sire.

An important tool on the summary has been the use of PD$, reported Olver.

"When PD dollars first came out," said Olver, "it gave us a way to compare bulls that sired a lot of milk and no test as opposed to bulls that sired high test and not quite as much milk."

Each year, thousands of young bulls enter sampling programs, either through established studs, syndicates or breeders.

When using young sires, Roth stressed the importance of randomness.

"A bull that's accepted for the young sire sampling program has as good a chance as the next young bull," said Roth. "Bulls who seem to have the greatest popularity in the sampling status, do not necessarily turn out to be the greatest bulls at proof time.

But from the "cream of the crop," selected each year, only 10 percent will meet the necessary criteria that will allow him to pass his genes on to future generations.

In the wild, animals improved their species through natural selection. Only the strong were able to propagate. In today's livestock industry, the evolution of superior individuals depends on a human's ability to decipher information and make the logical choice. The USDA sire summaries provide us with much of that information, necessary to keep the dairy industry moving forward, if not by leaps and bounds, by one step at a time.

Icy conditions cause severe deer losses

HARRISBURG — Thousands of deer are being lost to icy conditions in Pennsylvania, according to Game Commission field reports.

Several thousand whitetails have been found dead and injured in the northcentral part of the state alone, with Clinton, Lycoming, Tioga, Potter, Cameron, and Elk Countries being hardest hit.

Deer lose their footing on steep mountains and hills, and often slide from the top of a ridge to the bottom, unless they encounter a tree or rock on the way down. Backs, necks, legs and ribs are usually broken, often resulting in the death of the deer.

In numerous instances, the deer's hind feet and legs go in opposite directions on ice, resulting in split pelvises. Of course, these deer perish too.

Thus far, starvation losses have been relatively low, but a continuation of severe weather undoubtedly will result in additional mortality.

The statewide situation thus far is not of catastrophic proportions, but it becomes more serious as winter continues its mean onslaught of 1982.

Pa. is leading hunter state

Harrisburg - Latest figures compiled by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service indicate Pennsylvania continues to lead all states in the number of hunters.

The annual federal report shows that 1,272,763 individuals bought hunting licenses in the state during the federal 1980 fiscal year. Michigan had 957,209 paid hunting license holders, followed by Texas with 939,267.

Under Fish and Wildlife definitions, a paid license holder is one individual, regardless of the number of licenses he or she may purchase.

Only two other states had more than 700,000 paid license holders, New York with 741,376, and Wisconsin, with 713,152.

Pennsylvania's non-resident hunting license sales for the year totaled 96,762. Montana sold 125,612 nonresident hunting licenses, tags, permits, and stamps, while Colorado sold 111,661.

In Montana and Colorado, as well as many other states, a single hunter may purchase a number of individual species licenses, tags, permits, etc., so the nonresident license sales for many states other than Pennsylvania do not really indicate the actual number of nonresident hunters afield, as Keystone State figures do. Actually, Montana limits hunting license sales to 17,000 nonresidents.

Pennsylvania's hunting license sales returned $15,727,925.61 to the Game Commission for use in its wildlife management programs.

Injuries high for farmers

UNIVERSITY PARK — Once every four years the average farm laborer can expect to be injured severely enough to require medical attention.

"In fact, says Dennis Murphy, Penn State Extension farm safety specialist," agricultural workers are much more susceptible to accident and injury than industrial workers.

"The agricultural workers, unlike their counterparts in industry usually operate with a minimum of supervision and may not be adequately trained for the job."

The incidence of work related injury or illness resulting in days away from work is 2½ times greater for agricultural workers than the average for all industries.

Murphy notes that voluntary, not-for-profit organizations, like the Pennsylvania Farm Safety Council, help to reduce the accident toll in farm families, on and off the job.

The Council provides safety services and materials, such as technical, educational information, to keep agricultural workers alert to possible hazards and to help prevent accidents.

"It is necessary to go beyond engineered safety to protect farmers against accidents," says Murphy. "We must educate the individual farm and ranch residents and workers about the importance of accident prevention."

Farm safety specialists recognize three elements of safety—man, machine, and environment.

"Controling man is by far the most difficult, especially in farm safety," Murphy says.

No-till saves soil moisture

LEESPORT — Practices which conserve soil moisture are needed on many Berks County farms, says Joe Filanowski, a soil conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service, here. He said these practices can increase crop yields on the well-drained soils that tend to be droughty.

In Berks County, some farmers are using minimum tillage to conserve soil moisture. They have reduced the number of trips across the field and are leaving crop residue on the soil surface. Such measures increase infiltration and reduce evaporation.

Studies on minimum tillage have shown that when crop residues cover 95 percent of the soil surface, infiltration rates have increased by as much as 30 percent. So to achieve moisture conservation with a crop such as corn, it is important to shred and disk the stalks onto the soil surface as soon asfter harvest as possible and to select a form of tillage that will leave sufficient amounts of residue on the surface after the soil is worked in the spring.

The type of tillage which leaves the most residue on the soil surface is no-till. One trip across the field with no-till planter will only over 10 percent of the crop residue. Conversely one trip with the moldboard plow will cover 95 percent of the residue. The chisel plow and light disk lie between these two extremes since they cover approximately 30 percent of the residue per trip.

Help in identification of soils and moisture conservation practices is available from the Soil Conservation Service.

Hunters take 73,322 bucks

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania's deer hunters had another good year during the 1981-82 seasons, recording both the third largest buck harvest and the third largest total whitetail harvest, according to reports filed with the Game Commission.

Report Cards mailed in by successful hunters indicate 73,322 antlered deer were taken, while another 75,208 hunters reported tagging antlerless deer. This produces a total whitetail harvest of 148,530.

In the preceding year the figures were 73,196 antlered deer and 62,281 antlerless whitetails, for a total harvest of 135,477. That buck harvest had been the third largest up to that point.

Pennsylvania's all-time record buck harvest was registered in 1967, when 78,268 hunters reported tagging whitetails with antlers. As recently as 1977, the second largest reported buck harvest, 74,879, was recorded. This means that three of the four biggest reported buck harvests have occurred in the last five years.

Only four antlerless harvests larger than the most recent one have been registered.

This past season's total deer harvest was exceeded only in 1940, when 186,575 deer were taken (145,580 of that number were antlerless deer), and in 1938, when 171,662 antlerless deer were harvested (there was no open buck season in 1938). In the late 1930's, there were about a million deer in the state. Prior to the last hunting seasons, there were about 750,000 Pennsylvania deer.

In addition to the huge 1938 and 1940 harvests, hunters had big years on antlerless deer in 1949, when 84,121 were reported taken, and in 1968, when 79,836 were tagged.

Last fall, the Game Commission had said that it hoped hunters would return cards for at least 62,000 bucks and another 65,000 cards for antlerless deer.

Of the nineteen most successful buck seasons in the state's history, eighteen have occurred in the last eighteen years.

The Game Commission is now processing data to determine if the increased number of report cards filed means an increase in the harvest, or if a greater percentage of successful hunters filed report cards, as required by law.

Potter County, traditionally the leading deer producer, again was first during the most recent seasons, leading in the number of bucks, antlerless deer and total number of deer reports.

Hunters returned 3,706 buck cards and another 4,511 anterless cards, for a total of 8,217 whitetails from "God's Country."

During the 1980-81 seasons, Potter also led all other counties in all deer categories, with 3,575 antlered whitetails and another 2,906 antlerless deer, for a total of 6,481 whitetails. The 1979-80 Potter figures were 2,423 bucks, 3,415 antlerless, 5,838 total deer.

Following Potter in antlered deer in 1981-82 were Tioga 2,672. Bradford, 2,401; Warren, 2,158; McKean, 2,115; and Lycoming, 2,089.

Other leading antlerless counties were Tioga, 3,699; Warren, 3,219; Bradford, 3,128; and Forest, 2,793.

Counties other than Potter leading in total 1981-82 deer were Tioga, 6,371; Bradford, 5,529; Warren, 5,377; and Lycoming, 4,544.

The Game Commission emphasizes that all figures are actual counts of report cards filed by hunters.

Research doesn't justify link between fertility and hybrid

DES MOINES, IOWA — Corn growers should not assume that a definable connection exists between soil fertility and the yield response of different hybrids. Even if there were data establishing a correlation between nutrient level and specific hybrids' performance, scientists say the wide range of environmental variables makes application of the concept impractical at this time.

"Make sure nutrient levels are adequate, especially nitrogen. But don't fertilize for the hybrid; fertilize for the yield you expect to achieve," advises Nicholas M. Frey, plant physiologist in the Department of Corn Breeding at Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc.

Frey says attempts to choose hybrids for specific soil fertility levels have drawn some attention recently. In those systems, hybrid selections are based on an assumption that hybrids respond differently to various nutrient combinations.

The concept may be valid, but putting it into practice is another story. Frey cautions growers to examine all research data carefully before acting on recommendations matching hybrids to specific levels of soil fertility.

"The corn plant's response to fertility is an extremely complex research question," Frey explains. "Adding hybrid differences further complicates the issue.

"Also, fertility interacts closely with other environmental factors," he adds. "A plant's nutrient uptake depends on availability of moisture, temperature, sunlight, soil type and tillage...even weed control.

"All these elements are related. I don't think there is any way to accurately select corn hybrids for their response to fertility alone."

DRY COW: The Missing Link

It is easy to see why Purina Dairy Research scientist, Dr. Larry Prewitt says, "An adequate dry cow program is often the 'missing link' needed in a successful dairy operation. If a dairyman has a milk production or health problem, his dry cow program is the first thing I check."

Dairymen, "Why feed a milking ration to dry cows?" Milking rations are formulated with high energy. High energy milking rations are formulated to promote high milk production during lactation. Why should you feed dry cows a milking ration? You shouldn't. Purina Dairy Research recommends feeding Purina D&H Chow, a ration formulated especially to meet a dry cow's protein, vitamin and mineral requirements during the important two months when she's building most of her calf and preparing for high production in the next lactation. D&H Chow is fortified with extra vitamins A and D plus phosphorus to protect against milk fever at freshening time. Purina Research has shown that extra body condition at freshening can mean more milk in the next lactation.

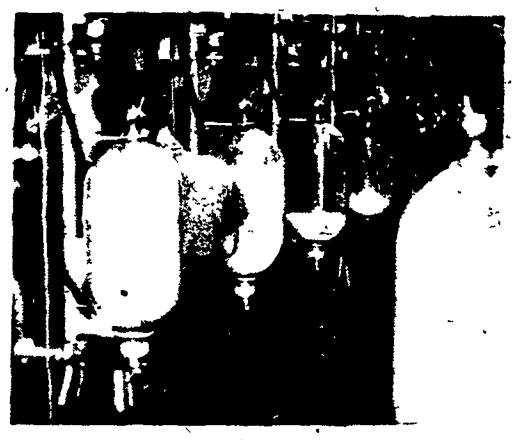
Purina Freshstart D&H Chow

builds body condition that can mean up to 2000 pounds extra milk



Increase milk Income with Purina D&H Chow

Dry cows and heifers have special nutritional requirements that are not available in a milking ration. They must have the correct balance of nutrients to develop the proper body condition and grow 2/3's of the calf during the last 60 days of gestation.

Purina Dairy Research and many good dairymen have proven that building proper body condition before calving can mean as much as 2000 pounds of extra milk the following lactation. If a cow in "fair" condition ends up in "average" condition at calving, she may produce up to 20 pounds more milk for each pound gained during the dry period. If she goes from "average" up to "good" condition during the same period, she may produce 10 pounds more milk for each pound gained.
